East Germany Asks U.S. Negotiate Return Of 9

Soviets Refuse Responsibility

BERLIN (AP) — Communist East Germany said Monday night that the United States must open direct negotiations for the return of nine U.S. soldiers seized there after their helicopter went astray.

The East German move, which followed up a Soviet Union refusal to accept responsibility, apparently was aimed at putting the U.S. government in a tight spot. The United States and other Western nations do not recognize East Germany and refuse to deal with it. All matters involving East Germany are taken to the Soviet Union.

Eight officers and a sergeant were seized Saturday when their helicopter became lost in a thunderstorm on a training flight and apparently ran out of gas over Soviet-occupied East Germany.

The big Sikorsky transport helicopter was attached to the 3rd Armored Division in West Germany.

Russian Runaround

The United States asked Soviet authorities to help get the Americans and their helicopter back.

But the Soviet Union disclaimed responsibility. A spokesman for the East Berlin Soviet Embassy said the East German government is responsible because the aircraft came down outside the three Allied air corridors that link West Germany and West Berlin.

Britain, France and the United States were guaranteed free air access to West Berlin through the air corridors over East Germany under a 1949 Big Four accord.

The East German statement, made in reply to questions from a reporter, indicated an attitude aimed at forcing the State Department to give practical—if not diplomatic—recognition to the satellite regime.

No Official Communication

The earlier Soviet Embassy statement, produced the same way, raised the possibility that the Americans might stay in jail indefinitely while Soviet and American authorities argued over jurisdiction.

In Washington, State Department officials voiced hope the Soviet Union would honor well-established precedent and release the helicopter and its occupants.

U.S. officials in Washington and Bonn said that no official communication on the case has been received from the East Germans or the Soviet Union.

Washington officials said that if an East German note is received it will be ignored as coming from a regime the United States does not recognize.

Macmillan, Eisenhower Begin Talks

Discussions All Informal, British Leader Declares

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Macmillan opened a series of talks Monday with a 2½-hour session devoted to "every subject under the sun."

Macmillan, smiling broadly, left the White House shortly before 5:30 p.m.

He was immediately besieged by reporters.

Answering questions he told them:

"We had a very nice talk about every subject under the sun."

Macmillan was asked whether he and the President reached any tentative agreements.

"No, no," he replied. "This was nothing but an informal discussion."

Top Aides Join Talks

The prime minister and the President met in the White House Cabinet Room. They were joined by a number of top aides and specialists.

They started off with a general discussion, but apparently switched a half hour later to specific talks about such key issues as U. S. missile bases for Britain. Atomic - sharing was also considered a prime topic.

Flanking Eisenhower at the first of three days of talks were Secretary of State Dulles and two Dulles' aides—Asst. Secretary C. Burke Elbrick and Counselor G. Frederick Reinhardt.

Macmillan brought four helpers — British Ambassador Sir Harold Caccia, Cabinet secretary Sir Norman Brook, Foreign Office Dep. under-secretary Sir Patrick Dean, and private secretary F. A. Bishop.

Missile Bases Possible Topic

Standing by in the White House conference room were a number of top U. S. officials including Mansfield Sprague, assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs, and Gen. Nathan Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The presence of these two was taken as a tipoff that the question of missile bases for Britain was under discussion.

The United States has agreed to set up a string of missile-launching sites, using intermediate range weapons, along Britain's east coast. Work on this is already under way.

White House Chat

President Eisenhower makes a remark to Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Great Britain as the two leaders posed outside the White House yesterday. It was Macmillan's first formal visit with the President. After the 2½-hour session, the British Prime Minister told reporters "we had a very nice talk about every subject under the sun." Senate Storm Is Kicked Up By Secretary

Charge Measure Ineffective Draws Cosponsors' Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration came out Monday against the Senate labor bill aimed at corruption in unions.

Two of the bill's cosponsors, Sens. Irving Ives (R-NY) and John F. Kennedy (D - Mass) promptly denounced the action as due to ignorance of the measure or yielding to political pressure.

The administration position was presented by Secretary of Labor Mitchell in a statement. He said the bill would weaken, not strengthen present corruption curbs.

Mitchell is attending a meeting in Geneva, Switzerland. His office said the statement represents the administration's viewpoint.

The secretary said the Senate committee bill, which has the endorsement of Chairman John McClellan (D - Ark) of the Senate Rackets Committee, follows President Eisenhower's recommendations in some respects.

But Mitchell said "the proposals as a whole would provide completely ineffective legislation, which would delude the workers of this country and the American public they had protection they did not in fact have."

Ives - Kennedy Statement

Ives and Kennedy said in a statement:

"The person who wrote that statement either has not read the bill or, having read it, did not understand it. As stated by Sen. McClellan last Friday 'in its present form this measure will give important protection to the rights of workers, of management and the public.' It represents a nonpartisan effort to carry out the recommendations of the McClellan committee on which we both serve."

Kennedy added:

"As late as last Friday afternoon we were in touch with responsible Labor Department officials on the bill, in the absence of Secretary Mitchell who was in Geneva. No opposition whatsoever was indicated. It is obvious that over the weekend political pressure was applied by those preferring a partisan issue to a responsible nonpartisan bill. It is unfortunate that this thoughtless partisanship may result in a bitter anti-labor bill or in no bill at all, destroying the long careful work of Sen. Ives, Sen. McClellan, and myself and indeed the entire Labor Committee."

Bill Promised Priority

The measure is designed to curb abuses by giving rank-and-file members greater control over union affairs and by requiring public reporting of union financial dealings.

No date has been set for taking up the bill in the Senate but Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex), the Senate majority leader, has said it will get high priority.

Mitchell said he was discouraged to find the Senate committee bill would "weaken the already pitifully ineffective legal protection presently provided by law to union members and the public."

De Gaulle Conducts Meeting Of Cabinet In Napoleonic Style

PARIS (AP) — Premier de Gaulle held a Cabinet meeting Monday in the crisp style of a military staff conference. He told the ministers of his decisions and saw them out in less than an hour. A minister described the atmosphere as Napoleonic.

De Gaulle also saw U. S. Ambassador Armory Houghton but without, according to the embassy bringing up the subject of a De Gaulle-Eisenhower meeting.

Houston's visit touched off rumors that the ambassador was trying to arrange such a meeting.

"There is not a word of truth in such talks," said an embassy spokesman. "The subject of such a meeting did not come up in the talks."

The spokesman said Houghton was flying home to see his son graduated from Harvard and that the trip had long been planned. He added that Houghton saw De Gaulle as a matter of courtesy before leaving.

Diplomatic sources said De Gaulle would be much too busy in Paris for the next few months to go to Washington. They said talks might be expected in the fall, especially if proposals for an East-West summit meeting materialize.

The embassy said Houghton will fly to Washington for a few hours on his U. S. visit but so far he has no appointment to see Eisenhower or Secretary of State Dulles.

British Prime Minister Macmillan, now in the United States, where he is conferring with Eisenhower, already has said he would like to meet with De Gaulle after his visit to America.

De Gaulle's Cabinet session lasted only 45 minutes. Aides said it was the shortest full dress session in the history of the Fourth Republic and apparently set a pattern that will be followed.

De Gaulle told his ministers the names of a group of noncontroversial politicians and technicians he picked to fill out the Cabinet ranks. The ministers approved his action and the session broke up.

"There was no discussion, no debate," said Information Minister Andre Malraux. "It was a session similar to those known in Napoleon's time as 'meeting on the formalities.'"

Greece Calls Cyprus Issue NATO Threat

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Fresh Cypriot rioting Monday strained the already taut relations among three NATO allies — Britain, Greece and Turkey.

Two killings in clashes between Cypriots of Greek and Turk origin over the future of the British-ruled isle, boosted the weekend death toll to six.

British authorities cracked down with curfew and other restrictions.

Greece threatened a showdown at a meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's Council in Paris Tuesday. The Athens government forwarded to Paris a memorandum outlining alleged acts of vandalism and atrocities by the Turks and citing the situation as a danger to the NATO alliance.

Cyprus is one of the last of Britain's footholds in the strategic Middle East. Four-fifths of the half million inhabitants are Greek-speaking and most of them, with blessings from Athens, want union with Greece. The outnumbered Turk Cypriots fear oppression in such an event. They want partition of the British pull out.

The British are expected to announce this month some plan of self-government. The expectation is the plan will turn down both Greek demands for Cypriot independence and Turkish demands for partition.

A high diplomatic source in Athens said Greece does not expect NATO to settle the issue but hopes NATO will intervene to protect the lives of Greek Cypriots.

If the atrocities continue, this informant said, Greece will appeal to the U. N. Security Council. Past Greek appeals to the U. N. have brought no notable contribution to a settlement. Greek Cypriots and the Greek government 15 months ago rejected a British-approved NATO offer to mediate.

In Ankara, Turkish diplomatic sources said Turkey would welcome a NATO airing in Paris. They said Turkey would take the opportunity to "expose to what extent the Greek government is responsible for the terrorism of (the Greek underground) EOKA on Cyprus."

President Replies To Khrushchev

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower sent a reply Monday to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's latest proposal on suspending atomic tests but the White House did not immediately release the text of the U.S. response.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said the President's letter would be released around 10 a.m., EDT, Tuesday.

"It will be a short one," Hagerty added.

Khrushchev recently proposed talks on a technical level to see if ways can be found to police mutual promises to end testing of nuclear weapons.

Army Cutback Still Opposed By Secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Army Brucker and his chief of staff, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, testified Monday that they need 55,000 more men than the administration is allowing for the Army next year.

Brucker told a senate appropriations subcommittee, however: "We are not here in any sense to upset the decision of our superiors."

The senators are considering a 99-million-dollar item the House added to the Defense Department budget to keep Army strength at 900,000 during the fiscal year starting July 1. The Pentagon recommended 870,000 men.

Under questioning by Chairman Dennis Chavez (D-NM), Brucker said the Army recommended to Secretary of Defense McElroy last September an increase in manpower to 925,000.

The Defense Department had tentatively ordered a cutback to 850,000 men at that time, Brucker said, but on appeal McElroy agreed to 870,000 a 30,000 reduction from the present strength.

The Army secretary emphasized that he and Taylor are bound by the higher decision. "We've done all in our power," he said.

When Chavez reminded him he could express an opinion without bucking the decision, Brucker said: "I can say that we have seen nothing since last September to change the logic of our request. On the contrary, we see many things to corroborate our judgment."

Taylor spoke in a similar vein. "I have not changed my position that a force of 925,000 is the minimum required strength we should have for the coming fiscal year," he told the subcommittee.

Democrats Ask Ike Speak Up For Trade Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Twenty - eight Democratic members of the House urged President Eisenhower Monday to speak up for his reciprocal trade program.

In an unusual gesture, they telegraphed Eisenhower that "what is needed is a very personal appeal by you" to Republican members.

"We are convinced that only your leadership, expressed in the most personal and forceful fashion to the great numbers of congressmen who are on the fence, will enable all of us to achieve the successful passage of the bill," their telegram said.

The House began two days of debate on reciprocal trade Monday, with administration pressure apparently tilting the balance slightly in favor of a five-year extension of the program first launched in 1934.

Whether backers of the President's plea for five more years of tariff-cutting powers could retain their slim edge won't be known until the actual showdown voting Wednesday. They counted on the persuasive powers of administration chieftains to swing some more reluctant Republican votes to their side.

Russ Ask U.N. Halt U.S. Tests

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The Soviet Union asked the U.N. Trusteeship Council Monday for steps to stop U.S. nuclear tests in the Pacific.

The United States described the move as a propaganda blast but expressed willingness to talk about the tests next week when the 14-nation Council discusses the U.S.-administered Pacific islands.

Soviet Delegate Ivar I. Lobanov demanded that the subject he raised be given priority in the Council. Later at the suggestion of India and Britain, he agreed not to press this proposal to a vote.

U.S. Delegate Mason Sears said his country would have been willing to make the Pacific islands the Council's first item of business if the Soviet request had come earlier. He added that now U.S. experts on the Pacific islands need time to get back for the discussion.

Navy Drops Plans For Six Warships

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Navy Monday dropped from its building program the planned construction of six new warships and the modernization of three others. It estimated savings at nearly half a billion dollars.

Secretary of the Navy Thomas S. Gates said the vessels had been eliminated to compensate for rising costs of labor and materials and the increasing expense of nuclear power and advanced guided missles.

The projects eliminated include two new destroyer escorts, four new guided missile frigates and the conversion of present ships to one amphibious assault carrier and two guided missile cruisers.

Gates said that the loss of work resulting from the cancellations can largely be compensated for by the award of ships to the affected yards in the building program provided in the fiscal 1959 budget starting July 1.

25 Cars Of B&O Freight Derailed

WOODBINE, Md. (AP)—Twenty-five cars of a Baltimore and Ohio Railroad freight train derailed Monday four miles east of here near the Carroll-Howard County line.

A railroad spokesman said the 124-car train, loaded with coal, was eastbound from Brunswick to the Curtis Bay yards in Baltimore.

No one was hurt. Relief trains were dispatched from Brunswick and Baltimore to the scene, where the derailment had blocked two of the four tracks.

The spokesman said traffic would be rerouted. Investigators were on the scene trying to determine the cause.

Kelly's Widow Seeks Freedom

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The widow of the late George (Machine Gun) Kelly, seeking freedom from a life imprisonment sentence for the 1933 kidnaping of oilman Charles Urschel, testified Monday she had been told to plead guilty.

Mrs. Kathryn Kelly, 54, first witness called as the case opened, nervously told U. S. Dist. Court Judge W. R. Wallace that prior to her trial she attended a session in the court chambers of U. S. Judge Edgar S. Vaught with her attorney James H. Mathers, and that both had urged her to plead guilty.

However, Mrs. Kelly said she refused to make a decision and on arraignment the following day she pleaded innocent.

Mrs. Kelly and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Ora Shannon, 70, were brought to Oklahoma City Saturday from the federal women's prison at Alderson, W. Va., to plead for their release. They are represented by James J. Laughlin, Washington, D. C. attorney who filed a petition asking that the life sentences of both women be nullified.

Laughlin contends the constitutional rights of both women were violated through false government evidence and that Mrs. Kelly was denied the right of counsel until several days after her arrest.

Appropriation Bills Approved By Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Monday passed a $6,108,000,000 appropriations bill to finance 17 independent government agencies in the year ahead.

Also passed was a $14,954,870 measure for the White House and the executive agencies.

Both bills went through by voice vote and now go to conference with the House to compromise differences.

The independent agencies bill as passed by the Senate is 441 million dollars below House figures.

Two Tots Die When Car Rolls Into Grand Canyon

CAMERON, Ariz., June 9 (UPI) — Two children plunged 1,500 feet to their deaths in the Grand Canyon today when their parents got out of the family car to take a scenic look at the giant gorge and the car rolled over the side of the canyon wall.

The parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Qualls, Brownsville, Tex., were in near hysteria as they told the State Patrol how their sons, James Lloyd, 5, and Harold Frank, 15-months, died in the plunge.

"We had parked at a lookout point to get a view of the canyon," Qualls told the patrol.

He said "D. H. (D. H. Dull, a 10-year-old relative, believed to be a nephew) went back to the car to get something out of the glove compartment. The baby was in the front seat and Jimmy was in the back.

"D. H. said when he reached into the glove compartment, the car began to roll and he jumped out of the way. It went over the side and we couldn't stop it."

Qualls said the car "was in gear, but we had forgotten to take it out of overdrive."

The bodies of the little victims were retrieved within three hours after the accident occurred at 12:24 p.m. (MST).

The scene of the accident was where steep cliffs overhang the Little Colorado River, which merges with the Big Colorado River at Grand Canyon proper.

Rocket Expert Resigns, Blasts Senior Scientists

WASHINGTON (AP)—A rocket and space weapons expert coupled a disclosure of his resignation from the Air Force Monday with a blast at the senior scientists upon whom the services rely for technological advice.

Col. William O. Davis, 38-year-old key figure in Air Force space planning, confirmed Pentagon rumors that he had resigned his commission.

Davis said military leaders have been criticized unfairly for the slow pace of U. S. space research as compared with that of the Soviet Union — particularly since the Reds launched the world's first satellites and have put up much bigger, heavier moons than the American variety.

"The basic trouble has been the overconservatism of our leading scientists," Davis said.

"These are the men appointed time after time to our service panels and advisory boards—the people to whom our generals, most of whom are not scientists, have been forced to turn for technological advice.

"I do not mean to imply that these men are not great scientists. But the fact that a man is a scientist does not automatically give him an open mind.

"The advice these senior scientists gave our military leaders was less than adequate."

Davis declined to identify the scientists he was talking about.

Davis said he planned to join Turbo Dynamics Corp. as vice president for research, to work in space technology at a facility to be built near Minden, Nev. He now lives with his wife and four children at Annapolis, Md.

Jobless Funds Voted By House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted swiftly Monday to put up $665,770,000 to carry out the unemployment compensation extension voted by Congress last week.

The appropriation bill goes now to the Senate for approval and then to President Eisenhower, who asked for it.

The House action, on a voice vote, followed quickly on Appropriations Committee approval. The committee said it was sure the amount was sufficient, since some states may not participate.

States can accept or reject the money, which has to be paid back later. The federal advances are designed to let each state extend by 50 per cent the period in which jobless benefits may be given to workers who have exhausted their claims.

This would mean another 13 weeks of payments in more than half the states which now have 26-week benefit periods.

Pennsylvania came into the program Friday. New York has set a June 23 date for beginning extra payments. Rhode Island will decide in a referendum Tuesday whether to participate. Action is due to be taken soon in Michigan, Massachusetts, Maryland, Minnesota and Indiana.

Connecticut has extended its payment period without federal help. Ohio and Illinois may do the same.

Macmillan, Eisenhower Begin Talks

Discussions All Informal, British Leader Declares

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower and British Prime Minister Macmillan opened a series of talks Monday with a 2½-hour session devoted to "every subject under the sun."

Macmillan, smiling broadly, left the White House shortly before 5:30 p.m.

He was immediately besieged by reporters.

Answering questions he told them:

"We had a very nice talk about every subject under the sun."

Macmillan was asked whether he and the President reached any tentative agreements.

"No, no," he replied. "This was nothing but an informal discussion."

Top Aides Join Talks

The prime minister and the President met in the White House Cabinet Room. They were joined by a number of top aides and specialists.

They started off with a general discussion, but apparently switched a half hour later to specific talks about such key issues as U. S. missile bases for Britain. Atomic - sharing was also considered a prime topic.

Flanking Eisenhower at the first of three days of talks were Secretary of State Dulles and two Dulles' aides—Asst. Secretary C. Burke Elbrick and Counselor G. Frederick Reinhardt.

Macmillan brought four helpers — British Ambassador Sir Harold Caccia, Cabinet secretary Sir Norman Brook, Foreign Office Dep. under-secretary Sir Patrick Dean, and private secretary F. A. Bishop.

Missile Bases Possible Topic

Standing by in the White House conference room were a number of top U. S. officials including Mansfield Sprague, assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs, and Gen. Nathan Twining, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The presence of these two was taken as a tipoff that the question of missile bases for Britain was under discussion.

The United States has agreed to set up a string of missile-launching sites, using intermediate range weapons, along Britain's east coast. Work on this is already under way.

Mrs. Kathryn Kelly, 54, first witness called as the case opened, nervously told U. S. Dist. Court Judge W. R. Wallace that prior to her trial she attended a session in the court chambers of U. S. Judge Edgar S. Vaught with her attorney James H. Mathers, and that both had urged her to plead guilty.

However, Mrs. Kelly said she refused to make a decision and on arraignment the following day she pleaded innocent.

Mrs. Kelly and her mother-in-law, Mrs. Ora Shannon, 70, were brought to Oklahoma City Saturday from the federal women's prison at Alderson, W. Va., to plead for their release. They are represented by James J. Laughlin, Washington, D. C. attorney who filed a petition asking that the life sentences of both women be nullified.

Laughlin contends the constitutional rights of both women were violated through false government evidence and that Mrs. Kelly was denied the right of counsel until several days after her arrest.

Appropriation Bills Approved By Senate

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Monday passed a $6,108,000,000 appropriations bill to finance 17 independent government agencies in the year ahead.

Also passed was a $14,954,870 measure for the White House and the executive agencies.

Both bills went through by voice vote and now go to conference with the House to compromise differences.

The independent agencies bill as passed by the Senate is 441 million dollars below House figures.

Greece Calls Cyprus Issue NATO Threat

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP)—Fresh Cypriot rioting Monday strained the already taut relations among three NATO allies — Britain, Greece and Turkey.

Two killings in clashes between Cypriots of Greek and Turk origin over the future of the British-ruled isle, boosted the weekend death toll to six.

British authorities cracked down with curfew and other restrictions.

Greece threatened a showdown at a meeting of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization's Council in Paris Tuesday. The Athens government forwarded to Paris a memorandum outlining alleged acts of vandalism and atrocities by the Turks and citing the situation as a danger to the NATO alliance.

Cyprus is one of the last of Britain's footholds in the strategic Middle East. Four-fifths of the half million inhabitants are Greek-speaking and most of them, with blessings from Athens, want union with Greece. The outnumbered Turk Cypriots fear oppression in such an event. They want partition of the British pull out.

The British are expected to announce this month some plan of self-government. The expectation is the plan will turn down both Greek demands for Cypriot independence and Turkish demands for partition.

A high diplomatic source in Athens said Greece does not expect NATO to settle the issue but hopes NATO will intervene to protect the lives of Greek Cypriots.

If the atrocities continue, this informant said, Greece will appeal to the U. N. Security Council. Past Greek appeals to the U. N. have brought no notable contribution to a settlement. Greek Cypriots and the Greek government 15 months ago rejected a British-approved NATO offer to mediate.

In Ankara, Turkish diplomatic sources said Turkey would welcome a NATO airing in Paris. They said Turkey would take the opportunity to "expose to what extent the Greek government is responsible for the terrorism of (the Greek underground) EOKA on Cyprus."

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Actress Rhonda Fleming Monday filed suit to end her stormy, six-year marriage to Dr. Lew Morrill, Beverly Hills physician.

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Actress Deborah Kerr Monday filed a suit for divorce from her husband of 12 years, RAF hero Tony Bartley.

Poppin,' Leapin' Fire

CHICAGO (AP)—It was really a poppin', jumpin' blaze that firemen fought Monday in a Northwest Side warehouse.

Heat of the fire sent a ton of popcorn bursting and leaping from 600 sacks stored by the Popcorn Specialties Co.

President Replies To Khrushchev

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower sent a reply Monday to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's latest proposal on suspending atomic tests but the White House did not immediately release the text of the U.S. response.

White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said the President's letter would be released around 10 a.m., EDT, Tuesday.

"It will be a short one," Hagerty added.

Khrushchev recently proposed talks on a technical level to see if ways can be found to police mutual promises to end testing of nuclear weapons.

Democrats Ask Ike Speak Up For Trade Plan

WASHINGTON (AP)—Twenty-eight Democratic members of the House urged President Eisenhower Monday to speak up for his reciprocal trade program.

In an unusual gesture, they telegraphed Eisenhower that "what is needed is a very personal appeal by you" to Republican members.

"We are convinced that only your leadership, expressed in the most personal and forceful fashion to the great numbers of congressmen who are on the fence, will enable all of us to achieve the successful passage of the bill," their telegram said.

The House began two days of debate on reciprocal trade Monday, with administration pressure apparently tilting the balance slightly in favor of a five-year extension of the program first launched in 1934.

Whether backers of the President's plea for five more years of tariff-cutting powers could retain their slim edge won't be known until the actual showdown voting Wednesday. They counted on the persuasive powers of administration chieftains to swing some more reluctant Republican votes to their side.

Army Cutback Still Opposed By Secretary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of the Army Brucker and his chief of staff, Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, testified Monday that they need 55,000 more men than the administration is allowing for the Army next year.

Brucker told a senate appropriations subcommittee, however: "We are not here in any sense to upset the decision of our superiors."

The senators are considering a 99-million-dollar item the House added to the Defense Department budget to keep Army strength at 900,000 during the fiscal year starting July 1. The Pentagon recommended 870,000 men.

Under questioning by Chairman Dennis Chavez (D-NM), Brucker said the Army recommended to Secretary of Defense McElroy last September an increase in manpower to 925,000.

The Defense Department had tentatively ordered a cutback to 850,000 men at that time, Brucker said, but on appeal McElroy agreed to 870,000 a 30,000 reduction from the present strength.

The Army secretary emphasized that he and Taylor are bound by the higher decision. "We've done all in our power," he said.

When Chavez reminded him he could express an opinion without bucking the decision, Brucker said: "I can say that we have seen nothing since last September to change the logic of our request. On the contrary, we see many things to corroborate our judgment."

Taylor spoke in a similar vein. "I have not changed my position that a force of 925,000 is the minimum required strength we should have for the coming fiscal year," he told the subcommittee.

Rocket Expert Resigns, Blasts Senior Scientists

WASHINGTON (AP)—A rocket and space weapons expert coupled a disclosure of his resignation from the Air Force Monday with a blast at the senior scientists upon whom the services rely for technological advice.

Col. William O. Davis, 38-year-old key figure in Air Force space planning, confirmed Pentagon rumors that he had resigned his commission.

Davis said military leaders have been criticized unfairly for the slow pace of U. S. space research as compared with that of the Soviet Union — particularly since the Reds launched the world's first satellites and have put up much bigger, heavier moons than the American variety.

"The basic trouble has been the overconservatism of our leading scientists," Davis said.

"These are the men appointed time after time to our service panels and advisory boards—the people to whom our generals, most of whom are not scientists, have been forced to turn for technological advice.

"I do not mean to imply that these men are not great scientists. But the fact that a man is a scientist does not automatically give him an open mind.

"The advice these senior scientists gave our military leaders was less than adequate."

Davis declined to identify the scientists he was talking about.

Davis said he planned to join Turbo Dynamics Corp. as vice president for research, to work in space technology at a facility to be built near Minden, Nev. He now lives with his wife and four children at Annapolis, Md.

Senate Storm Is Kicked Up By Secretary

Charge Measure Ineffective Draws Cosponsors' Fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Eisenhower administration came out Monday against the Senate labor bill aimed at corruption in unions.

Two of the bill's cosponsors, Sens. Irving Ives (R-NY) and John F. Kennedy (D - Mass) promptly denounced the action as due to ignorance of the measure or yielding to political pressure.

The administration position was presented by Secretary of Labor Mitchell in a statement. He said the bill would weaken, not strengthen present corruption curbs.

Mitchell is attending a meeting in Geneva, Switzerland. His office said the statement represents the administration's viewpoint.

The secretary said the Senate committee bill, which has the endorsement of Chairman John McClellan (D - Ark) of the Senate Rackets Committee, follows President Eisenhower's recommendations in some respects.

But Mitchell said "the proposals as a whole would provide completely ineffective legislation, which would delude the workers of this country and the American public they had protection they did not in fact have."

Ives - Kennedy Statement

Ives and Kennedy said in a statement:

"The person who wrote that statement either has not read the bill or, having read it, did not understand it. As stated by Sen. McClellan last Friday 'in its present form this measure will give important protection to the rights of workers, of management and the public.' It represents a nonpartisan effort to carry out the recommendations of the McClellan committee on which we both serve."

Kennedy added:

"As late as last Friday afternoon we were in touch with responsible Labor Department officials on the bill, in the absence of Secretary Mitchell who was in Geneva. No opposition whatsoever was indicated. It is obvious that over the weekend political pressure was applied by those preferring a partisan issue to a responsible nonpartisan bill. It is unfortunate that this thoughtless partisanship may result in a bitter anti-labor bill or in no bill at all, destroying the long careful work of Sen. Ives, Sen. McClellan, and myself and indeed the entire Labor Committee."

Bill Promised Priority

The measure is designed to curb abuses by giving rank-and-file members greater control over union affairs and by requiring public reporting of union financial dealings.

No date has been set for taking up the bill in the Senate but Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex), the Senate majority leader, has said it will get high priority.

Mitchell said he was discouraged to find the Senate committee bill would "weaken the already pitifully ineffective legal protection presently provided by law to union members and the public."

Jobless Funds Voted By House

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House voted swiftly Monday to put up $665,770,000 to carry out the unemployment compensation extension voted by Congress last week.

The appropriation bill goes now to the Senate for approval and then to President Eisenhower, who asked for it.

The House action, on a voice vote, followed quickly on Appropriations Committee approval. The committee said it was sure the amount was sufficient, since some states may not participate.

States can accept or reject the money, which has to be paid back later. The federal advances are designed to let each state extend by 50 per cent the period in which jobless benefits may be given to workers who have exhausted their claims.

This would mean another 13 weeks of payments in more than half the states which now have 26-week benefit periods.

Pennsylvania came into the program Friday. New York has set a June 23 date for beginning extra payments. Rhode Island will decide in a referendum Tuesday whether to participate. Action is due to be taken soon in Michigan, Massachusetts, Maryland, Minnesota and Indiana.

Connecticut has extended its payment period without federal help. Ohio and Illinois may do the same.

Witness' Memory Lapse Amazes FCC Probers

WASHINGTON (AP) — House investigators voiced incredulity Monday when a television station owner said he didn't remember what Federal Communications Commissioners he talked to about shifting a coveted TV channel to St. Louis, Mo.

And Rep. Oren Harris (D-Ark), chairman of the subcommittee checking federal regulatory agencies, bristled angrily at charges that his group smeared former Massachusetts Gov. Paul A Dever at Boston hearings last week.

Harris said balky witnesses themselves were responsible for incomplete testimony going into the public record. Subcommittee Counsel Robert W. Lishman said Boston industrialist Bernard Goldfine reportedly threatened "to put the committee out of business."

Harry Tenenbaum, St. Louis investment banker and co-owner of Signal Hill Corp.'s station KTVI, was not accused of trying to stymie the inquiry. But Harris called him evasive and Rep. Peter F. Mack (D-Ill) said he was amazed when Tenenbaum couldn't recall under oath what commissioners he talked to.

KTVI, once running far in the red as a channel 36 UHF (ultra high frequency) station, came upon better financial days after a February 1957 FCC decision shifting VHF (very high frequency) Channel 2 from Springfield, Ill., to St. Louis and giving it to KTVI.

The FCC order was part of the program of separating UHF and VHF areas with the aim of making both types of stations sounder financially. Lishman's questioning attempted to show that Tenenbaum knew the award was coming long before the FCC decision.

Tenenbaum said that as a member of a UHF industry organization he contacted FCC commissioners about transferring Channel 2 from Springfield to St. Louis. But he said he worked at this as a nationwide problem of UHF-VHF separation, not just Cannel 2.

"It looks like the commission was more interested in saving you than in saving UHF generally," said Mack. "I hope you agree with me."

"Congressman, I couldn't agree less with that statement," Tenenbaum replied. He said the shift helped both Springfield and St. Louis.

"I never had any behind the scenes activities," the KTVI owner added. "I think the commission discusses these matters (policy on TV allocations) with everyone."

Supreme Court Review Granted Labor Leader

WASHINGTON (AP) — A labor leader convicted of contempt for refusing to produce a list of union members for congressional Red hunters won a Supreme Court review Monday.

So did a witness convicted of contempt for refusing to answer questions before one of Virginia's racial investigating committees.

Both cases will be argued during the court term beginning next October.

One of the cases involves the contempt conviction of Abram Flaxer, who headed the United Public Workers of America, a union of federal, state and municipal employes. The union now is out of business.

In 1951, Flaxer was before the Senate Internal Security subcommittee, which was investigating Communist infiltration of federal agencies.

He refused to produce the union's membership rolls. As a result, he was indicted and convicted of contempt. He received a two-month jail sentence and was fined $1,000.

The case may go far in spelling out the powers, as the court sees them, of congressional committees to punish balky witnesses.

The Virginia case the court agreed to rule on is that of David H. Scull, an Annandale printer. Scull received a 10-day jail sentence and a $50 fine for defying a legislative committee headed by Delegate James M. Thomson.

The Thomson committee was looking into activities of the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People and other groups involved in racial litigation.

Scull, who is white, contended his freedom of speech and association were unlawfully impaired by his conviction. He had refused to say whether he was associated with the NAACP and other organizations.

Bomarc Interceptor Missile Launched

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) —A Bomarc, the nation's most highly developed ground-to-air interceptor missile, was launched from the test center Monday.

The test was the latest in a highly successful program aimed at preparing the speedy Boeing rocket for service with the Strategic Air Command in the near future.

The Bomarc, which seeks out and destroys an airborne enemy target as far as 300 miles away, roared straight up with a burst of orange flame and streaked over the horizon in seconds.

It probably was directed at a pilotless B17 bomber drone cruising over the Atlantic. During the test series the missile homes in on the drone but usually does not make contact.

Police Try Out Educated Dice

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP)—Some Grand Rapids policemen shot craps on company time Monday but no money changed hands.

The police were testing 600 pairs of educated dice, worth $1,000, confiscated last weekend from two nondelegates at an engineers' convention. Some dies, they found, were loaded so a shooter could call his combination in advance. Some came up seven every time. Others were numbered so that sevens never would turn up.

McKeldin Fires Back At State Demo Chairman

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gov. McKeldin said Monday that a tax program criticized by State Democratic Chairman T. Barton Harrington of Baltimore was supported — commendably — by members of Harrington's own Democratic Party.

The Republican governor, in a statement, replied to Harrington's weekend criticism of sales and income tax increases, McKeldin's commutation of death sentences, and governor's trips to Europe.

"Mr. Harrington wants to know," said McKeldin, "if our people approve the increases in the sales and income taxes which were necessary to the maintenance of our excellent state services to the people of Maryland.

"Why doesn't he ask the members of his party in the Senate of Maryland and the House of Delegates who voted for the increases? In doing this they showed their sense of responsibility for which I commend them, even though Mr. Harrington condemns them, at least by indirection.

"Why did not Mr. Harrington ask if the people of Maryland approve of the tax on cigarets which becomes effective next month, along with a border police for its enforcement? This is a tax which the General Assembly —overwhelmingly of Mr.Harrington's party — enacted over my veto."

McKeldin said he did not consider himself an "absentee governor" while describing Maryland's "vacationing and industrial opportunities in other states and other countries."

As to commutations, McKeldin asked if Harrington were advocating a "gas chamber governor —who would evade the duty of reviewing death sentences."

Former Grid Star Indicted In Slaying

TOKYO (AP) — Former Yale football star Joseph P. Crowley was indicted Monday on a charge of beating to death his business partner and brother-in-law, T.A.D. Jones Jr.

The 48-year-old ex-halfback was accused specifically of inflicting bodily injuries resulting in death, a charge similar to manslaughter in the United States. Conviction could result in a sentence of 2 to 15 years in prison.

The indictment said Crowley beat Jones with his fist while under the influence of alcohol. Japanese courts often give lighter sentences for crimes committed by intoxicated offenders.

Crowley and Jones, both of New Haven, Conn., and Frederick M. Kissinger, a Maryland accountant, came to Tokyo May 5 to buy an oil tanker. Three days later Jones was found badly beaten in the Imperial Hotel suite the three men shared.

He died later iin the day. An autopsy found the cause was a cerebral hemorrhage.

Negro Who Refused To Leave Picnic Freed

ARLINGTON, Va. (AP) — Mrs. Robert A. Eldridge Jr., a Negro, was acquitted Monday of a disorderly conduct charge. She had been so charged for refusing to leave a racially mixed church picnic.

In freeing Mrs. Eldridge, Arlington County Court Judge Paul D. Brown said the case was a question of what constitutes disorderly conduct, not one of racial segregation.

Fluorescent Paint Reduces Chance Of Air Collision

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Administration is going to mark its 92-plane fleet with bright orange fluorescent paint to lessen the chances of aerial collisions.

The agency said Monday a test on one of its DC3s showed that the paint, which reflects light, makes a plane more visible against any background.

Five airlines have indicated they plan to buy special high-conspicuity paint of one type or another for their planes, or are investigating its use.

But spokesmen for the air transport industry generally said the CAA program appeared to be more an intensifying and expansion of its evaulation program rather than evidence of successful completion.

The Air Transports Assn. plans to await more information as to the effectiveness of the paint in all light conditions, and as to the paint's durability, rather than encourage each airline to conduct its own evaluation.

The CAA planes are to have 15 to 20 per cent of their surfaces coated with "blaze" orange fluorescent paint — a piercing flame color—bordered in black.

The wing tips will be painted, and there will be two wide stripes on the upper and lower wing surfaces.

The tail assemblies also will be painted, and there will be a wide stripe along the under side of the plane.

The sides will have an orange stripe extending the length of the plane. Paint also will be applied to the nose of all the planes except those with airborne radar equipment. Fluorescent paint on the nose of a radar-equipped plane would interfere with radar signals.

Two Of Five Prison Escapees Captured

LORTON, Va. (AP) — Two of five men who cut their way out of the District of Columbia Reformatory here with a blowtorch have been recaptured.

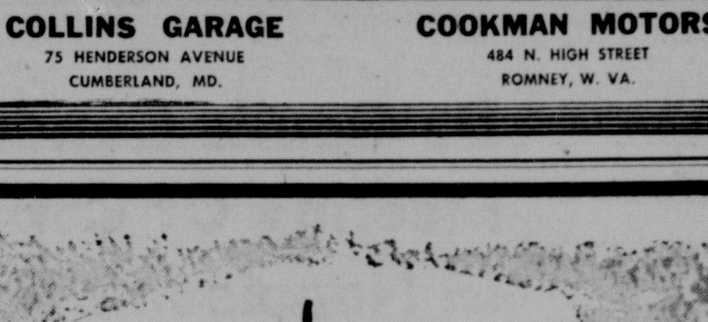

William Barbour, 23, was picked up Sunday night and Joseph F. Wright was captured Monday at a Fairfax County gas station.

Donald Clemmer, the District's director of corrections, said a bloodhound was trailing William Barbour, 23, when Ft. Belvoir military policemen spotted him crossing U.S. 1 near the post.

Barbour, a parole violator, was captured without a struggle.

The five inmates apparently slipped away Saturday night from a group being marched to a movie, crawled through a brick utility tunnel and a sewer, and then used a blowtorch to cut the bars at the sewer opening and those on a gate at the outer wall.

Donald Clemmer, the District's director of corrections, said a bloodhound was trailing William Barbour, 23, when Ft. Belvoir military policemen spotted him crossing U.S. 1 near the post.

Barbour, a parole violator, was captured without a struggle.

The five inmates apparently slipped away Saturday night from a group being marched to a movie, crawled through a brick utility tunnel and a sewer, and then used a blowtorch to cut the bars at the sewer opening and those on a gate at the outer wall.

150 Baltimore Policemen To Guard Soviet Envoy

BALTIMORE (AP) — A special police detail will guard Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A.Menshikov Tuesday night during his visit here for an address before the Baltimore Bar Assn.

Police officials disclosed Monday 100 uniformed officers will be stationed a few feet apart from each other near entrances to the Lord Baltimore Hotel, where Menshikov will speak to a dinner audience.

Fifty other police were assigned to the event as plainclothesmen and will mingle with an expected crowd of several hundred. A group opposing the invitation to Menshikov has picketed the offices of bar association officials for one week and is expected to demonstrate its opposition when the Soviet ambassador appears at the hotel.

Disclosure of special police precautions came as a charged atmosphere prevailed on the eve of Menshikov's appearance.

Lawyers, including some who had unsuccessfully attempted to get the bar association to revoke the invitation, took issue with outsiders staging protests against the invitation.

The outsiders have focused their protests the past week by picketing the office building of Francis Michel, president of the Bar Assn.

The pickets have been directed from Lithuanian Hall. A demonstration outside the hotel where Menshikov will speak Tuesday night is being urged.

Law partners of Michel decried what they called the harassment of Michel as target of the protestants. Hyman Pressman, one of the lawyers who sought to have the Russian ambassador's invitation revoked, echoed their feeling.

"I appeal to those outside the association who oppose Menshikov not to permit this affair to get any further out of hand," Pressman said.

The Bar Assn. voted 334-90 May 27 not to rescind Menshikov's invitation. Pressman said lawyers who felt the invitation was a mistake had accepted the decision and it was Michel's duty as president to do likewise.

Gordon G. Murray and William Offut Doub, Michel's law partners, compared his treatment to the attacks on Vice President Nixon in South America recently.

"Is it not a reasonable premise that what certain individuals and groups are now attempting to do by their intimidation of the Bar Assn. and certain of its members and officers bears a certain analogy to the same treatment afforded Mr. Nixon and his wife?" they asked.

"Are these same individuals or groups not presenting the Communists, for whom they profess such an understandable hatred, a perfect propaganda weapon for use throughout the world."

Murray and Doub said Michel has received telephone calls every 15 minutes for days from those protesting the ambassador's appearance in Baltimore. He also has received "profane and abusive letters unsigned by the writers," they reported.

Murray and Doub pointed out that Michel had little to do with inviting Menshikov to speak at the annual banquet. An entertainment committee he appointed issued the invitation after three other persons declined to accept.

Pressman said he appreciates the feelings of "those whose relatives and fellow countrymen have been murdered by the Communists."

"However, there is a point where intensely deep feeling can warp judgment. It is unfortunate that the protest has turned into a campaign of personal harassment against the president of the Bar Assn.," Pressman added.

The pickets also showed up last night in front of the home of former U.S. Senator George Radcliff. He is to introduce Menshikov at the banquet.

Fledgling Navy Officers Begin Fleet Training

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Forty-three major ships of the U.S. 2nd Fleet departed today on Atlantic Fleet Exercise I-58 with more than 2,000 Naval Reserve Officer Training Corps and Naval Academy midshipmen.

The ships are en route to European ports.

The fleet, commanded by Vice Adm. Bernard L. Austin, will visit ports in eastern and northern Europe with the first ports of call in Portugal and Spain. Admiral Austin is embarked in his flatship USS Northampton.

The task force, under the tactical command of Rear Adm. Kenneth Craig, will conduct exercises off the Atlantic Coast and en route to Europe.

The midshipmen will become a part of the unit in which they are embarked and will be given realistic fleet training in various billets assigned. For most of the midshipmen, this will be their first glimpse of the European continent. The ships will visit Portugal, Spain, West Germany, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Netherlands, Belgium and England.

Included in the task force on the exercise, which has been named Lantflex I-58, are the aircraft carriers Intrepid and Lake Champlain, the guided missile cruiser Canberra, the heavy cruisers Newport News and Macon, 29 destroyers, the submarines Entemedor and Bang; destroyer tender Yosemite; fleet oilers Elokomin, Caloosahatchie and Truckee, and the fleet supply ship Denebola.

Harford Integration Plan Passes Test

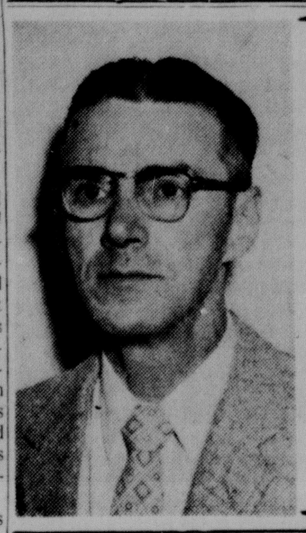

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harford County's plan for gradual "stair-step" integration of its public schools pssed another court test Monday when the Supreme Court refused to rule on its validity.

The nation's highest court, in effect, approved the plan since it remains in effect.

The Harford County School Board in adopting the plan called for gradual integration of elementary schools over a two-year period and high schools over a period of five years. It also provides taht qualified Negro students who pass special examinations are to be admitted to high school grades pending the end of segregation in those grades. That is, Negroes passing the special exams would be admitted to white high schools before the end of general segregation.

Attorneys for Negro students contended the plan did not comply with the Supreme Court's 1955 decision calling for the ending of racial segregation in schools with all deliberate speed.

Thurgood Marshall, New York lawyer for the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, joined other counsel in appealing to the Supreme Court from a decision by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond. It had upheld Baltimore Federal Judge Roszel C. Thomsen who had approved the plan.

Policemen Go On Trial Again

BALTIMORE (AP)—Two ranking Baltimore policemen went on trial Monday for the second time on charges they induced two sergeants to give false testimony.

The first trial ended after someone telephoned members of the jury in what Judge Reuben Oppenheimer said was a "dastardly and criminal attempt" to influence the jury.

The judge ordered the new jury kept in seclusion at a hotel between court sessions.

Inspector Clarence O. Forrester and Capt. Hyman Goldstein are charged with subornation of perjury by allegedly causing two Rackets Division sergeants to testify falsely at a lottery trial.

The new jury of six men and six women was picked Monday in a little more than two hours.

Bus Plan Is Opposed

An independent bus line operator told the Mayor and Council that moving of the Greyhound bus terminal further away from the downtown area will be a detriment to out-of-town shoppers using the line and cost the City of Cumberland revenue.

Woodrow Danewood, Frostburg, manager of Peoples Transit Company, appeared before council yesterday to ask if council would make an effort to keep the present terminal in the 100-block of North Mechanic Street.

Frank B. Vandegrift, president of the Hudson-Van Oil Company of Kansas City, has announced he will not renew Greyhound's lease on the present terminal and he plans to raze the buildings he owns there to install a large service station and parking lot for approximately 100 cars.

The bus station must be vacated not later than October 1, he said.

Casper Taylor Jr., told council that Greyhound had indicated to him it had rejected Vandegrift's terms for maintaining the present terminal and had given him reason to believe they favored a site owned by him and his father, Casper Taylor, Sr., at the corner of Valley Street and North Mechanic. He cited advantages to the flow of traffic by the move.

Ballot Change For Absentees Sought By Long

Finance Commissioner John J Long asked yesterday that the city's laws be changed for the next election in 1962 to make it easier for residents to cast absentee ballots.

Long told the Mayor and Council he had been asked a number of times what the procedure is in filing a city absentee ballot and called for a ruling.

City Attorney Thomas B. Finan said the matter was discussed before the primary and the law clearly states that application for an absentee ballot must be filed 30 days before the election.

City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery said the city would consider such a program and added it has never had an absentee ballot program.

Finan said the city operates under state and county election laws and elections are supervised by the Allegany County Board of Election Supervisors.

Earl E. Manges, president of the board, said absentee ballots are sent to those requesting them 30 days prior to the election and they must be returned by 7 p.m. election day. There were no applications this year, he said.

The applicant must also state why he is to be absent and make application for both primary and general election ballots, Manges said.

Long said he was not being critical of the board but that there was a problem and he would like to see it worked out before the next election.

Manges said it would be a help if the city changed its deadline for filing of candidates. By making it earlier, time would be given for preparing absentee ballots and plenty of publicity could be given to the fact they are available.

Under the present law, the filing deadline for candidates is just 10 days prior to the primary.

It was indicated some action might be taken after other members of council said they had also been approached on the absentee voter problem.

Referring to a statement by Mayor Roy W. Eves that it was probably unfair to bring up the question six days after the primary and eight before the general elections, Commissioner Long said "whether the mayor thinks it fair or unfair, I think it deserves to be brought out if the people ask me. I am here to represent the people. The next election is what I'm talking about."

Pay Change For Employes Defeated

A proposal that city employes at Lake Gordon go on a straight monthly salary effective July 1 was defeated in the Mayor and Council yesterday when a tie vote developed.

The proposal was made by Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan who said the men were "getting starvation wages and something should be done about it."

But Street Commissioner William H. Buchholtz went to bat for all the city employes when he said "If any adjustment is made for one, it should be made for all departments."

Finance Commissioner John J. Long said the move was not a salary increase but an adjustment in the method of paying.

In the vote, Keegan and Long voted for the proposal with Buchholtz and Mayor Roy W. Eves opposing. As a result of the tie vote, the motion lost.

Men at the Lake Gordon dam are paid on varying hourly rates, some get free housing, free lights and heat. The matter was discussed at previous meetings of the Mayor and Council in an effort to solve the problem and Keegan said his motion was based upon information brought out during these sessions.

In another action yesterday, council filed for next month's budget sessions a request from the Municipal Concert Band that its appropriation be restored to its original $5,200.

At the same time, a band request for an additional $460 for its June concerts got verbal support but ended up with the reply: The city just doesn't have the money.

J. Wallace Close, band president, asked the city to pay the last installment of its $3,000 appropriation and said the $750 had already been expended.

Lake Ontario is the lowest of the Great Lakes.

Largest single religious body in the United States is the Roman Catholic church, which in 1952 had more than 30 million members.

In June 1784 Joshua Humphreys, noted construction expert, was appointed America's first naval constructor with an annual salary of $2,000.

Payroll Data Is Sought

Police and Fire Commissioner William V. Keegan said yesterday the men in his departments are blaming him because they did not get a pay increase and demanded of the Finance Department that it explain how an increase could be granted.

Finance Commissioner John J. Long said the only way the employes would get a raise "would be from you." He meant that the money would have to come from the appropriations of the two departments which Keegan heads. Otherwise, Long said the question would have to wait until the new budget is adopted next month and he didn't know what that will be.

Keegan wanted to know then "how much short will we be on the budget."

Long said he could not answer on such short notice but would have to look into it. But City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson said at the present time it looks like from $125,000 to $150,000. He said there will be several non-recurring items of income the city will not have this year.

Keegan said both he and Gibson had been blamed for blocking the pay increase. Gibson said he merely presented the figures as auditor. He said if possible to give the men a pay increase, he would not oppose it.

Three primary colors — red, yellow and blue—are needed to make two complementary colors.

Local Native To Be Ordained

A former resident of Cumberland will be ordained at 7:30 p. m. Sunday by the Presbytery of Baltimore in ceremonies at First Presbyterian Church, according to Rev. Maurice D. Robertson, pastor.

To be ordained is Theodore A. Blunk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolf Blunk, former residents of Cumberland who now live in Florida.

Graduated last week from Princeton Seminary, young Blunk is also a graduate of Mercersburg (Pa.) Academy and Denison University, Granville, Ohio.

During his senior year in the seminary, he served as student pastor of Union Hill (N. J.) Presbyterian Church. He has been issued a call to serve as pastor of the church following his ordination, and will assume his duties there on June 22.

Presiding at the ordination ceremonies will be Rev. David I. Rees, Catonsville, moderator of the Presbytery of Baltimore. Assisting will be Rev. David W. Weaver, pastor of Hunting Ridge Presbyterian Church, Baltimore; Rev. John D. Tate, pastor of Hamilton Presbyterian Church, Baltimore, and Rev. William D. Eisenberger, Carlisle, Pa., retired minister who was formerly pastor of First Church here.

Following the ordination, a reception will be held in the Fellowship Hall of the church in honor of Rev. Mr. Blunk and Rev. Emil G. Teyssier, who will assume his new duties as assistant pastor of First Presbyterian Church that day.

Demos Change Delegates

Josiah E. Mullenax, Flintstone, will replace F. Patrick Allender as a delegate to the state Democratic convention from Allegany County due to the illness of Mr. Allender.

Allender, business agent of the Carpenters Union here, is a patient in Memorial Hospital. Mullenax will use Allender's proxy in attending the convention today at the Emerson Hotel in Baltimore.

Mullenax is a trustee of the Carpenters Union and is serving as acting business agent during Allender's absence.

Other delegates from Allegany County will be Mrs. Anne Everline, Julius E. Schindler, Edward V. Welsh, William L. Wilson, Simon F. Reilly and William C. Walsh.

The Allegany County delegation will cast votes for J. Millard Tawes, for governor; Thomas D'Alesandro, for U. S. Senate; C. Ferdinand Sybert, for attorney general; and Louis Goldstein, for comptroller. It is expected that Thomas B. Finan, city attorney, will nominate Sybert at the convention.

In olden times, pie was served as the main course instead of dessert.

Kelly Workers Complain To City About Fly Ash

Kelly-Springfield Tire Company employes leveled another blast at the Potomac Edison's river plant yesterday, charging that emissions of fly ash in recent weeks hvae been increasing.

Charles B. Krimm, George L. Zimmerla and L. W. Leasure, voiced the complaint before the Mayor and Council, cited the smoke control ordinance, previous efforts to control the ash emission at the plant and demanded to know why the penalty provisions of the ordinance are not being carried out.

Krimm said the men worked the "cat-eye" shift at Kelly and said cars were parked outside City Hall for inspection by council. Leasure said the heavy blast of ash occurred at 3:20 a. m. yesterday.

Mayor Roy W. Eves and Krimm engaged in an at times huffy verbal exchange. The mayor said he had contacted PE officials as soon as he heard about the complaint (9 a.m.) but had not had time to get a reply. He said in the past, that a special engineering study had been made of the plant fly ash emission and the problem alleviated. But Krimm said it was only temporary and only when pressure was brought to bear.

Street Commissioner William H. Buchholtz said he thought the people are entitled to permanent relief since the fly ash contains harmful acid. He said he was of the opinion when a study was made of the problem six months ago, that the situation was taken care of. Zimmerla told council if he breaks an ordinance, he has to pay a fine and demanded to know why the smoke control ordinance was not enforced.

Eves promised that relief from the condition would be forth coming.

Ushers To Meet

Members of St. John's Lutheran Church who are interested in ushering at church affairs are to report to the church at 7:30 p. m. today, according to Rev. Russell E. Fink, pastor, who said an instruction program is being inaugurated.

Union Meets Tomorrow

A meeting of Local 434 of the Garment Workers Union, will be held Wednesday at 3:15 p. m. at the Labor Temple, according to Winifred Browning, president.

Local Native To Be Ordained

A former resident of Cumberland will be ordained at 7:30 p. m. Sunday by the Presbytery of Baltimore in ceremonies at First Presbyterian Church, according to Rev. Maurice D. Robertson, pastor.

To be ordained is Theodore A. Blunk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adolf Blunk, former residents of Cumberland who now live in Florida.

Graduated last week from Princeton Seminary, young Blunk is also a graduate of Mercersburg (Pa.) Academy and Denison University, Granville, Ohio.

During his senior year in the seminary, he served as student pastor of Union Hill (N. J.) Presbyterian Church. He has been issued a call to serve as pastor of the church following his ordination, and will assume his duties there on June 22.

Presiding at the ordination ceremonies will be Rev. David I. Rees, Catonsville, moderator of the Presbytery of Baltimore. Assisting will be Rev. David W. Weaver, pastor of Hunting Ridge Presbyterian Church, Baltimore; Rev. John D. Tate, pastor of Hamilton Presbyterian Church, Baltimore, and Rev. William D. Eisenberger, Carlisle, Pa., retired minister who was formerly pastor of First Church here.

Following the ordination, a reception will be held in the Fellowship Hall of the church in honor of Rev. Mr. Blunk and Rev. Emil G. Teyssier, who will assume his new duties as assistant pastor of First Presbyterian Church that day.

Demos Change Delegates

Josiah E. Mullenax, Flintstone, will replace F. Patrick Allender as a delegate to the state Democratic convention from Allegany County due to the illness of Mr. Allender.

Allender, business agent of the Carpenters Union here, is a patient in Memorial Hospital. Mullenax will use Allender's proxy in attending the convention today at the Emerson Hotel in Baltimore.

Mullenax is a trustee of the Carpenters Union and is serving as acting business agent during Allender's absence.

Other delegates from Allegany County will be Mrs. Anne Everline, Julius E. Schindler, Edward V. Welsh, William L. Wilson, Simon F. Reilly and William C. Walsh.

The Allegany County delegation will cast votes for J. Millard Tawes, for governor; Thomas D'Alesandro, for U. S. Senate; C. Ferdinand Sybert, for attorney general; and Louis Goldstein, for comptroller. It is expected that Thomas B. Finan, city attorney, will nominate Sybert at the convention.

In olden times, pie was served as the main course instead of dessert.

Kelly Workers Complain To City About Fly Ash

Kelly-Springfield Tire Company employes leveled another blast at the Potomac Edison's river plant yesterday, charging that emissions of fly ash in recent weeks hvae been increasing.

Charles B. Krimm, George L. Zimmerla and L. W. Leasure, voiced the complaint before the Mayor and Council, cited the smoke control ordinance, previous efforts to control the ash emission at the plant and demanded to know why the penalty provisions of the ordinance are not being carried out.

Krimm said the men worked the "cat-eye" shift at Kelly and said cars were parked outside City Hall for inspection by council. Leasure said the heavy blast of ash occurred at 3:20 a. m. yesterday.

Mayor Roy W. Eves and Krimm engaged in an at times huffy verbal exchange. The mayor said he had contacted PE officials as soon as he heard about the complaint (9 a.m.) but had not had time to get a reply. He said in the past, that a special engineering study had been made of the plant fly ash emission and the problem alleviated. But Krimm said it was only temporary and only when pressure was brought to bear.

Street Commissioner William H Buchholtz said he thought the people are entitled to permanent relief since the fly ash contains harmful acid. He said he was of the opinion when a study was made of the problem six months ago, that the situation was taken care of. Zimmerla told council if he breaks an ordinance, he has to pay a fine and demanded to know why the smoke control ordinance was not enforced.

Eves promised that relief from the condition would be forth coming.

Apple Service Opposes New Fruit Labeling Plan

MARTINSBURG, W. Va. (AP) — The Appalachian Apple Service is calling for defeat of an effort by a federal agency to expand labeling of fruit.

Carroll R. Miller, secretary-manager of the service for apple growers in West Virginia, Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania, issued a statement calling a proposal by the Food and Drug Administration "pernicious bureaucracy."

The administration has asked Congress to require that chemicals used to spray apples for insects and disease must be listed on the container when they are offered for sale.

"Such labeling does not protect the consumer," Miller stated. If the chemicals were injurious, Food and Drug and the Department of Agriculture could not, and would not, tolerate it being offered publicly for sale. So it has to be a safe chemical.

"All chemicals used in or on foods must be submitted by the makers to Food and Drug for testing before the chemical can be offered for sale to growers; and F-and-D agents in increasing numbers check constantly on violations in usage or tolerance.

"The public is amply protected."

Miller said congressmen from the four states have been asked to kill the bill on fruit labeling which is in the House Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee.

The four-state area has 4,804,376 apple trees at last count. Virginia had 2,083,817, Pennsylvania 1,548,937, West Virginia 839,500 and Maryland 322,122.

The main varieties grown are Yorks, Delicious, Stayman, Romes and Golden Delicious.

Belgium has sometimes been called the "cock pit of Europe" because it has been the scene of more European battles than any other country.

Cresaptown Firemen Get False Alarm

Eleven members of the Cresaptown Volunteer Fire Department responded to a false alarm about 9:35 a. m. yesterday which took them on an unnecessary trip to LaVale.

An unidentified woman called the Cresaptown Fire Hall and calmly announced that her house in LaVale was burning to the ground. After that single statement she hung up the receiver and the firemen began their fruitless trip.

First Assistant Fire Chief L. R. Winters led the potential fire-fighting crew to LaVale where they discovered that the call obviously was the work of a prankster. Chief Winters said that false alarm is still under investigation and criminal prosecution will result if the caller can be identified.

"This deplorable situation further weakens our distressed economy," it says, "and the Republican Administration has little to offer except a plea for patience to the victims of its mistaken policies.

"It makes the same plea to the farmers who are victims of broken Republican promises."

Butler To Speak

The Republicans are also accused of alienating friends and losing influence for the United States in foreign affairs, as well as jeopardizing the safety of the nation by "the failure of the National Defense Department to keep pace with the Russians in scientific progress."

As the platform was being whipped up, Democratic headquarters announced Paul M. Butler, national party chairman, will address the convention tomorrow.

Besides hearing him and such defeated candidates as George P. Mahoney, defeated aspirant to the U. S. Senate, the delegates will go through the formality of nominating Statewide candidates who won or had no opposition in the May 20 primary.

Heading the ticket are State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes, candidate for governor, and Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro of Baltimore, the senatorial nominee. State Sen. Louis L. Goldstein won the primary for comptroller and Atty. Gen. C. Ferdinand Sybert was unopposed for renomination.

Announce Way To Help Drain All 8 Sinus Cavities Without Discomfort

New decongestant tablet for sinus congestion sufferers acts both to drain clogged sinus cavities and relieve distressing head pain

New York, N. Y. (Special) Announcement has been made of a new tablet development which has the remarkable ability to help drain clogged sinus cavities and thus relieve congestion and pressure. The headaches, pressure pains, stuffed-up head, nasal drip, clogged breathing—all the unrelenting symptoms the sinus sufferer knows so well—are attacked directly by improving drainage of the sinus areas.

Most remarkable of all is the fact that this is accomplished with extraordinary speed and without discomfort of any kind. This new tablet does its remarkable work internally, through the blood stream. It deposits into every drop of blood plasma a new medication which is carried to the sinus area, where it shrinks the swollen doors to the sinus cavities and helps drain away the pain-causing pressure and congestion.

The shrinking substance in this new tablet has been so successful topically in promoting drainage of the sinus cavities that it is now prescribed more widely by doctors than any material for this purpose. This new medication is now available at drug counters without the need for a prescription under the name, Dristan® Tablets. Dristan Tablets cost only 98¢ for a bottle of 24 tablets. Buy and use Dristan Tablets with the absolute guarantee that they will drain away pain-causing pressure and congestion of the sinus cavities, relieve the pain and distress, or purchase price will be refunded.

Good Will Mission That Worked Out

Drowned in the furor over the anti-Nixon incidents in South America was the fact that another "good will" mission had a tremendous success down there during the same period.

This was the tour of South America by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. The orchestra visited Caracas before Vice President Nixon's visit and Lima shortly after his stop there—but the reception was completely different.

Not that there weren't disturbances. Just as the airplanes were arriving in La Paz, Bolivia, for the concert, a revolt flared. In Bogota, Colombia, the orchestra arrived on election day, and during the next two days there was a police revolt. The aggregation was in Caracas on May Day, there as in many other places a day for noisy demonstrations.

But the remarkable thing was that the orchestra and its activities were completely sheltered from these stormy events. Revolution or no, thousands came to every concert. Parades and ovations were memorable.

Crowds awaiting Conductor Bernstein in the streets after the concerts were so great that his personal safety was feared for in some instances.

The ovations were tremendous, especially for the playing of "The Star Spangled Banner." The New York Times reported that "the playing of local national anthems never before heard in performance by a large orchestra has had an electrifying effect in many cities." In fact, the first visit of an orchestra of such stature is already having "profound repercussions on local music conditions."

This is good news from the same area where U. S.-Latin American relations were so severely strained. And it suggests that non-political "good will" ambassadors are the kind to send to such troubled regions these days.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Revolution

Since 1945, the entire world has been in a state of revolution. This has not only been a political revolution, the nature of which has been to move away from representative government to executive government, but it has also been a period of social and economic revolution—a movement away, in Western Europe and America, from Calvinistic capitalism to socialism in a variety of forms.

This revolution has been sufficiently in process to require understanding because it influences and affects every country and the United States more than any other country.

A revolution always starts as a protest against some institution. The French Revolution of 1789 was a revolt against the decaying institutions of feudalism; the Russian revolution of 1917 started as a revolt against a decadent autocracy. The Turkish revolution of 1908 which ultimately brought about Kemal's reforms was a revolt against the degrading nature of the Sultanate and its demoralizing effect on the people; the Chinese revolutions of 1911, 1915, and 1925 were declarations of opposition to foreign domination over a great people. The Meiji Revolution in Japan of 1868 was a revolt against the obscuratism of the Shogunate. The American Revolution of 1775 comes down to the right of a people to a government of its own choice and therefore was a protest against taxation and government without representation.

And so it has gone throughout the history of man. No revolution ever is made by the masses of the people. It is either a method of an element in the ruling class to use the masses to change the form of government or the structure of government as, for instance, when the bankers and large industrialists of Germany supported Hitler with the object of overthrowing the Third Reich, or it is a product of the intellectuals as was the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917.

What is the nature of the de Gaulle Revolution? It really started with a military coup d'etat in Algeria in the course of which a large section of the army manifested its protest against a decaying parliamentary system of government which since 1946 was steadily leading France to suicide. If the Army and Navy and Air Force joined together, it could have produced a civil war in France which might have set the whole world on fire. We are not yet free from this danger.

Charles de Gaulle entered politics to hold France in tutelage for a short period during which he might rewrite the Constitution, destroy multiple parties, eliminate proportional representation and restore a responsible parliamentary system of government in which the Executive and Legislative branches of government are separated, as they are in the United States.

There is no record in history of a people being held in tutelage except by a dictatorial political party such as the Kuomintang in China, the Communists in Russia, or by a dictatorial individual such as Franco in Spain. De Gaulle therefore offers to do something new and different for which he gives himself the short period of six months.

De Gaulle faces five pressures which at this moment seem insuperable. Pressure No. 1 is from the Right, from those who would reject parliamentarism altogether and who would establish a dictatorship; pressure No. 2 is from the Left, the Communists who must sooner or later attempt to replace de Gaulle by a Communist regime; pressure No. 3 is from the military forces which will find de Gaulle too slow in achieving their objective which is the restoration of France's prestige in the world; pressure No. 4 is from the United States which will insist that France remain in NATO; pressure No. 5 is from Soviet Russia which will insist that de Gaulle leave NATO.

These pressures will increase as the six months' period will approach its close and de Gaulle will demand and take more time. At that point he will be accused of being a Louis Philippe, a General Boulanger and there are bound to be barricades.

October then is the month when the first stage of this revolution in France should terminate and another stage be entered upon. What the next stage will be, no one can say now, but it must be in the minds of such men as Soustelle and Duclos, to say nothing of Mendes-France who still has a role to play.

Revolutions do not move according to any schedule. They are a series of explosions, each explosion setting off many chain reactions.

'He Doesn't Jump Any More'

U.S. Should Send 'Tony' Biddle To France To Deal With DeGaulle

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The American who knows General de Gaulle best and who could best swing him toward better cooperation with the USA is Anthony Drexel Biddle, former tennis star, now Adjutant General of Pennsylvania.

When Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt were snubbing de Gaulle, Biddle was one of the few Americans who went out of his way to win de Gaulle's friendship.

Biddle, then stationed in London, was Ambassador to the governments-in-exile from Poland, the Netherlands, Belgium, Norway, and other occupied countries. At first he did not represent the French, but sent a telegram to Roosevelt:

"Unless I hear from you to the contrary within 24 hours I shall assume that my mission also includes the exiled government of France."

Thereafter, he also became ambassador to de Gaulle. De Gaulle was kept so in ignorance of allied operations that he did not even know British and American troops were landing in North Africa until he read it in the newspapers. Biddle found him sincere, sensitive, stubborn on little things, not on big things; completely courageous.

Note—Biddle served as aide to Eisenhower when Ike was head of SHAPE in Paris. He is a Democrat. Since Ike is appointing few Democrats to ambassadorships, it's doubtful that he would send Biddle to France.

Socialite Sluggers

Franz Szuzina, middleweight boxing champion of Germany, was being quizzed by Washington socialites about the pugilistic profession. He was in the nation's capital for a bout with Joey Giardello for the benefit of Big Brothers.

"How do you feel toward the man opposite you in the ring? Do you get mad when he lands one on you?" the young German was asked.

"No," Szuzina replied, "you don't get mad. You can't afford to get mad. You want to win. After it's over you shake hands."

"Which would you rather fight in—the boxing ring or the social ring of Washington where people really get mad?"

"In Washington," added beautiful Mrs. Gwen Cafritz, herself an arbiter of Washington society, "they shake hands but don't speak."

Anonymous Lobbies

An up-to-date investigation of lobbying in the nation's capital is long overdue. The silky-voiced gentlemen hired to influence votes in Congress and contracts in the Pentagon are supposed to register with the Justice Department, but more and more of them are finding loopholes in the law.

One loophole is to distribute anonymous literature. Latest illustration is a neatly bound book received through the mails by Congressmen from "The Long House," a publishing firm in New Canaan, Conn. It is called "Mainline" and is authored by Senator "Molly" Malone, the isolationist Republican from Nevada.

The book is a lengthy, rambling, bitter attack on the reciprocal trade treaties. It was sent to Congressmen for the obvious purpose of influencing them to vote against the Reciprocal Trade Treaty Act now before Congress. But the identity of the persons or organization mailing out this expensive book remains a secret. Someone is putting up the money. Not Malone. He's so hard up that he has taken to various outside means of raising money.

Finally Congressman Charles Porter of Oregon wrote to Long House to see who was distributing the propaganda. "I note," he said, "that the book was sent as a gift with the compliments of an 'interested friend.' I should like to know the name of this citizen and request that you give me his name and address."

Replied the publisher: "We were requested, and agreed, to keep in confidence this man's identity. Even the author of the book does not know who he is."

Thus operates the anonymous lobbies of Washington.

Right-To-Work

The whopping margin rolled up by Democrat Pat Brown over GOP Senator "right - to - work" Knowland in California may sound the death knell of the anti-labor so-called right-to-work bill, not only in California, but in certain other states.

California needs 129,000 signatures to get the right-to-work bill on the ballot next fall, and since the deadline is June 28 it will probably fail.

Other states are in the same boat. In Washington, where Eisenhower's brother contributed to put across the right-to-work bill, it may be dropped. The petition lacks 38,000 signatures and the deadline is July 5.

Ohio needs 350,000 signatures. Industrialists in that heavily industrialized state are hiring college boys at $90 a week to get signatures. They are required to get only 90 bona fide signatures a week.

In Montana, a small state population-wise, 6,000 signatures are needed of the total 21,700 and the deadline is July 3. Canvassers are discouraged.

Idaho needs a total of 21,000 signatures by July 3 and still lacks 5,000. The Chamber of Commerce is taking half-page ads in the newspapers urging people to sign the petition so that they may have a right to vote on this issue in November.

The whopping defeat of Senator Knowland, the man who backed right-to-work to the hilt, isn't going to encourage the anti-labor drive in these states.

The French 'Para': Lonely Spartan In Athens

By Joseph Alsop

ALGIERS

The uniform is made of camouflage cloth, designed to lose itself in a jungle in sunlight (for it was adopted in the time of the cruel war in Indo China). The man the uniform encloses is in the kind of hard condition that, in these softer, later days, is almost an affront to the rest of mankind.

He is not really "he," because this "he" is a composite of a dozen or so of these officers of the French parachute regiment with whom one has talked. But let us speak of "him" because "he" has had much the same experiences and has shown much the same reaction as all the rest of them.

He is, then, rather lower in rank than an officer of comparable age in the American Army: for promotion in the French professional officer corps is a slow business at best. In experience, on the other hand, he is far older than most members of the post-war generation in any other army. He has in fact been almost continuously at war during his entire adult life.

The plastron of medals on his chest, which he always wears unless he prefers the single ribbon of the Legion of Honor, tells his whole life story. Six years in Indo China, then three years in Algeria — if this is the story, it may be thought admirable but it is certainly not exceptional.

His experience has been not quite the same as the experience of other French professional officers who are not parachuted. This is chiefly because no French soldiers who were not volunteers were sent to Indo China; and the parachute regiments, entirely composed of volunteer soldiers, consequently fought the whole war there. Hence there is this difference between him and other French officers of his age, that he has probably seen far more of war and that his profession is much more his whole life.

But this difference between him and his brother officers is far less significant than the differences between him and his own people. Here the gulf is wide and even rather terrible. For France, nowadays, is more and more a comfortable country, living the comfortable, materially prosperous but inglorious life that seems to be the western ideal and aim.

He long since rejected this ideal and aim. He has perhaps done things that would shock most modern moralists of the West — the parachutists did not drive terrorism from Algiers by ordinary police methods. But he has his own aim and his own ideal, which combined produce somewhat unexpected results.

He has, for example, an unconcealed admiration for the Communist soldiers of the Viet Minh and the Algerian rebels, whom he has spent his whole life fighting. And he has the most perfect contempt, not only for the French politicians who have never had the courage to make either war or peace, but also for the prosperous bourgeois at home and the rich colons here in Algeria.

In truth, he is an uprooted man, in the sense that he has largely rejected both the values and the ideas of success of his own society. Yet in another sense, a very deep sense, he is still captive of his society's values.

An average Soviet officer might have done all that our parachutists have done without ever asking for any justification beyond those reasons of State which are the almighty State's sole business. In contrast, the parachutist may have largely rejected the material value of western society, but he has not altogether rejected its humanitarian values. So he seeks a justification, sometimes rather desperately.

Herein, largely lies the secret of his passionate dedication to the idea of "integrating Algeria" to the rest of France. Make of the wretched Moslem masses full citizens of a greater France. Give them the same education, the same opportunities, the same social benefits as the rest of the French people. Then there is a reason, higher than any reason of State, to make war upon them and even to torture those who are suspected of terrorist activities.

It is ironical but it is true that he feels this need. And who can blame him for seeking justification for his experience, which would have caused any other western army to abandon its government at least five years earlier?

He was in truth one of those who did abandon the Fourth Republic, and so he prepared the way for the new France, just born and wholly unpredictable, of Gen. de Gaulle. Having seen de Gaulle in power, he would surely follow his leader to the end of the earth, if it were not for one difficulty. But how will he react if de Gaulle concludes that metropolitan France cannot or should not carry out the Algerian integration in which he so passionately believes? To this question, he hardly knows the answer himself.

Furthermore, the difficulty is even deeper, if you look carefully into it. For has he not been formed into a lonely Spartan in the bosom of the most Athenian of modern societies? And how is the gulf between the man of Sparta and the men of Athens ever to be abridged?

Total Curfew

By Bob Considine

ALGIERS — (UPI) — Funny thing happened to me on the way home last midnight from an abandoned bat cave named the Algiers Press Club. People had disappeared.

"Stay on the left side of Lelluche Street when you walk back to the hotel," Reynolds Packard had counselled. It seemed like a traffic suggestion at the time. But once on the pavement it was apparent that I could have walked criss-cross down this, Algiers' main drag, and never been touched by human hand or chrome bumper.

Not a living soul was visible as far as the eye could see, and it could see for a couple of miles in both directions.

A complete curfew is a terrible thing for an American to behold. Algiers was shuttered and its principal street as abandoned as if a terrible plague had struck the town, killed all the people, and their corpses had been removed.

You never realize how much noise you make walking until you walk down a street that possesses no other sound. Suddenly you are aware that you can also hear yourself breathing, a thought that surely never occurs to the pedestrian in any U.S. city.

The way was brightly lighted. It was garishly dead. In London during the war it was pleasant to walk along in the almost stygian blackout. You felt the whole world was out strolling with you, though you seldom saw a face. The cars would feel their way along the streets, marked only by tiny crosses of translucence on otherwise blacked-out headlights. Humans, walking along, were little more than the tiny cherry glow of their cigarets.

A curfew in a land like this is something different. It is spooky and frightening and in its shocking silence it speaks of the deeds of terror that forced it upon this city. The French — or is it the former French? — army, navy and air force are here in force. They are brave, fine lads. Their red-bereted paratroops, serving under the brilliant Gen. Massu, look as if they could hold their own with any troops on earth. It is a day force.

The people of Algiers, people from the mainland and the hooded and veiled people whose ancestors were here when the Crusaders went this way, still view the coming of nightfall with misgivings. It is worse, they say, outside the big cities.

"There," said Lionel Durand of Newsweek, "The French rule by day. The Moslems rule by night."

General de Gaulle is becoming the Estes Kefauver of North Africa. He has shaken more hands in the fast few days than perhaps in his entire previous career. Leaving the scene of his address to 200,000 Moslems and French settlers at Constantine on Thursday, he came over to the brilliant young Hearst reporter Serge Fliegers and held ont a ham-sized hand. Serge shook it warmly.

"Merci pour tout ce que vous avez fait," de Gaulle said, thanking Serge for everything he had done.

An aide looked horrified. "Monsieur le General," he whispered, identifying Serge as "only" a newspaperman, "C'est seulement un journaliste!"

Realizing his great mistake, de Gaulle turned to a berobed Moslem who looked like a stray from a Cecil B. DeMille set, seized his hand and said: "Merci pour tout ce que vous avez fait."

The guy scratched and smiled toothlessly.

Doctor Finds Nearly All His Patients Really Ill

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Many persons believe that 90 per cent of all patients who see a physician have nothing wrong with them. This gross misstatement has been repeated so often it is accepted as gospel truth.

Dr. Howard R. Seidenstein, a general practitioner of New Rochelle, N. Y., estimates that only 4 per cent of his patients were neurotic. This is closer to the truth and in keeping with the experiences of other physicians including myself. On the other hand, this small group takes up at least one-fifth of a physician's time. They tax his ingenuity because of the many hours spent in fruitless searching for physical causes of their complaints.

Dr. Seidenstein kept an accurate record of all the patients he saw in 1954. This included the number, diagnoses, and visits he made. New Rochelle is a suburban city of 65,000 and has people from all walks of life, but the majority are in the above average income group.

The city has one hospital and 150 physicians, of whom half are specialists. Dr. Seidenstein is regarded as a family physician who cares for old and young and does everything except major surgery and the care of infants under 1 year of age. His practice contains a fair representation of the types of illness that occur in these United States.

Of the total visits, 65 per cent were for medical problems such as respiratory diseases, heart trouble, allergy, arthritis, old age, strokes, neuroses, and gastrointestinal disorders. He saw 28 patients with coronary thrombosis and 20 with strokes, in contrast to 900 with colds and other respiratory diseases. Pelvic disorders were high on the list of women's surgical conditions.

There were 53 consultations relative to pregnancy, approximately one a week. These women made a total of 434 visits averaging nine calls per pregnancy. This is mentioned because many persons do not realize that the physician spends considerable office time with obstetrical patients in addition to the work in the delivery room. There were 281 injuries other than fractures. Leg, arm, and finger infections were common. The list also included a variety of minor surgical conditions such as squirrel bite, wens, warts, and bladder infections.

Good Will Mission That Worked Out

Drowned in the furor over the anti-Nixon incidents in South America was the fact that another "good will" mission had a tremendous success down there during the same period.

This was the tour of South America by the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. The orchestra visited Caracas before Vice President Nixon's visit and Lima shortly after his stop there—but the reception was completely different.

Not that there weren't disturbances. Just as the airplanes were arriving in La Paz, Bolivia, for the concert, a revolt flared. In Bogota, Colombia, the orchestra arrived on election day, and during the next two days there was a police revolt. The aggregation was in Caracas on May Day, there as in many other places a day for noisy demonstrations.

But the remarkable thing was that the orchestra and its activities were completely sheltered from these stormy events. Revolution or no, thousands came to every concert. Parades and ovations were memorable.

Crowds awaiting Conductor Bernstein in the streets after the concerts were so great that his personal safety was feared for in some instances.

The ovations were tremendous, especially for the playing of "The Star Spangled Banner." The New York Times reported that "the playing of local national anthems never before heard in performance by a large orchestra has had an electrifying effect in many cities." In fact, the first visit of an orchestra of such stature is already having "profound repercussions on local music conditions."

This is good news from the same area where U. S.-Latin American relations were so severely strained. And it suggests that non-political "good will" ambassadors are the kind to send to such troubled regions these days.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Revolution

Since 1945, the entire world has been in a state of revolution. This has not only been a political revolution, the nature of which has been to move away from representative government to executive government, but it has also been a period of social and economic revolution—a movement away, in Western Europe and America, from Calvinistic capitalism to socialism in a variety of forms.

This revolution has been sufficiently in process to require understanding because it influences and affects every country and the United States more than any other country.

A revolution always starts as a protest against some institution. The French Revolution of 1789 was a revolt against the decaying institutions of feudalism; the Russian revolution of 1917 started as a revolt against a decadent autocracy. The Turkish revolution of 1908 which ultimately brought about Kemal's reforms was a revolt against the degrading nature of the Sultanate and its demoralizing effect on the people; the Chinese revolutions of 1911, 1915, and 1925 were declarations of opposition to foreign domination over a great people. The Meiji Revolution in Japan of 1868 was a revolt against the obscuratism of the Shogunate. The American Revolution of 1775 comes down to the right of a people to a government of its own choice and therefore was a protest against taxation and government without representation.

And so it has gone throughout the history of man. No revolution ever is made by the masses of the people. It is either a method of an element in the ruling class to use the masses to change the form of government or the structure of government as, for instance, when the bankers and large industrialists of Germany supported Hitler with the object of overthrowing the Third Reich, or it is a product of the intellectuals as was the Bolshevik Revolution of 1917.

What is the nature of the de Gaulle Revolution? It really started with a military coup d'etat in Algeria in the course of which a large section of the army manifested its protest against a decaying parliamentary system of government which since 1946 was steadily leading France to suicide. If the Army and Navy and Air Force joined together, it could have produced a civil war in France which might have set the whole world on fire. We are not yet free from this danger.

Charles de Gaulle entered politics to hold France in tutelage for a short period during which he might rewrite the Constitution, destroy multiple parties, eliminate proportional representation and restore a responsible parliamentary system of government in which the Executive and Legislative branches of government are separated, as they are in the United States.

There is no record in history of a people being held in tutelage except by a dictatorial political party such as the Kuomintang in China, the Communists in Russia, or by a dictatorial individual such as Franco in Spain. De Gaulle therefore offers to do something new and different for which he gives himself the short period of six months.

De Gaulle faces five pressures which at this moment seem insuperable. Pressure No. 1 is from the Right, from those who would reject parliamentarism altogether and who would establish a dictatorship; pressure No. 2 is from the Left, the Communists who must sooner or later attempt to replace de Gaulle by a Communist regime; pressure No. 3 is from the military forces which will find de Gaulle too slow in achieving their objective which is the restoration of France's prestige in the world; pressure No. 4 is from the United States which will insist that France remain in NATO; pressure No. 5 is from Soviet Russia which will insist that de Gaulle leave NATO.

These pressures will increase as the six months' period will approach its close and de Gaulle will demand and take more time. At that point he will be accused of being a Louis Philippe, a General Boulanger and there are bound to be barricades.

October then is the month when the first stage of this revolution in France should terminate and another stage be entered upon. What the next stage will be, no one can say now, but it must be in the minds of such men as Soustelle and Duclos, to say nothing of Mendes-France who still has a role to play.

Revolutions do not move according to any schedule. They are a series of explosions, each explosion setting off many chain reactions.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

A gent who had had many, many drinks too many was weaving down the street when a pair of identical twins approached from the opposite direction. They separated at the last moment, one twin passing him on the right, the other on the left.

The befuddled gent took several more steps, then stopped in his tracks, and clapped a hand to his forehead. "Now how in blazes," he wondered audibly, "did that fellow do that?"

A TV quizmaster who was protesting rather too vehemently that his program was "completely and utterly spontaneous and unrehearsed" reminded critic Harriet Van Horne of Ralph Waldo Emerson's observation: "The louder he talked of his honor, the faster we counted our spoons."

U.S. Should Send 'Tony' Biddle To France To Deal With DeGaulle

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The American who knows General de Gaulle best and who could best swing him toward better cooperation with the USA is Anthony Drexel Biddle, former tennis star, now Adjutant General of Pennsylvania.

When Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt were snubbing de Gaulle, Biddle was one of the few Americans who went out of his way to win de Gaulle's friendship.

Biddle, then stationed in London, was Ambassador to the governments-in-exile from Poland, the Netherlands, Belgium, Norway, and other occupied countries. At first he did not represent the French, but sent a telegram to Roosevelt:

"Unless I hear from you to the contrary within 24 hours I shall assume that my mission also includes the exiled government of France."

Thereafter, he also became ambassador to de Gaulle. De Gaulle was kept so in ignorance of allied operations that he did not even know British and American troops were landing in North Africa until he read it in the newspapers. Biddle found him sincere, sensitive, stubborn on little things, not on big things; completely courageous.

Note—Biddle served as aide to Eisenhower when Ike was head of SHAPE in Paris. He is a Democrat. Since Ike is appointing few Democrats to ambassadorships, it's doubtful that he would send Biddle to France.

Socialite Sluggers

Franz Szuzina, middleweight boxing champion of Germany, was being quizzed by Washington socialites about the pugilistic profession. He was in the nation's capital for a bout with Joey Giardello for the benefit of Big Brothers.

"How do you feel toward the man opposite you in the ring? Do you get mad when he lands one on you?" the young German was asked.

"No," Szuzina replied, "you don't get mad. You can't afford to get mad. You want to win. After it's over you shake hands."

"Which would you rather fight in—the boxing ring or the social ring of Washington where people really get mad?"

"In Washington," added beautiful Mrs. Gwen Cafritz, herself an arbiter of Washington society, "they shake hands but don't speak."

Anonymous Lobbies

An up-to-date investigation of lobbying in the nation's capital is long overdue. The silky-voiced gentlemen hired to influence votes in Congress and contracts in the Pentagon are supposed to register with the Justice Department, but more and more of them are finding loopholes in the law.

One loophole is to distribute anonymous literature. Latest illustration is a neatly bound book received through the mails by Congressmen from "The Long House," a publishing firm in New Canaan, Conn. It is called "Mainline" and is authored by Senator "Molly" Malone, the isolationist Republican from Nevada.

The book is a lengthy, rambling, bitter attack on the reciprocal trade treaties. It was sent to Congressmen for the obvious purpose of influencing them to vote against the Reciprocal Trade Treaty Act now before Congress. But the identity of the persons or organization mailing out this expensive book remains a secret. Someone is putting up the money. Not Malone. He's so hard up that he has taken to various outside means of raising money.

Finally Congressman Charles Porter of Oregon wrote to Long House to see who was distributing the propaganda. "I note," he said, "that the book was sent as a gift with the compliments of an 'interested friend.' I should like to know the name of this citizen and request that you give me his name and address."

Replied the publisher: "We were requested, and agreed, to keep in confidence this man's identity. Even the author of the book does not know who he is."

Thus operates the anonymous lobbies of Washington.

Right-To-Work

The whopping margin rolled up by Democrat Pat Brown over GOP Senator "right-to-work" Knowland in California may sound the death knell of the anti-labor so-called right-to-work bill, not only in California, but in certain other states.

California needs 129,000 signatures to get the right-to-work bill on the ballot next fall, and since the deadline is June 28 it will probably fail.

Other states are in the same boat. In Washington, where Eisenhower's brother contributed to put across the right-to-work bill, it may be dropped. The petition lacks 38,000 signatures and the deadline is July 5.

Ohio needs 350,000 signatures. Industrialists in that heavily industrialized state are hiring college boys at $90 a week to get signatures. They are required to get only 90 bona fide signatures a week.

In Montana, a small state population-wise, 6,000 signatures are needed of the total 21,700 and the deadline is July 3. Canvassers are discouraged.

Idaho needs a total of 21,000 signatures by July 3 and still lacks 5,000. The Chamber of Commerce is taking half-page ads in the newspapers urging people to sign the petition so that they may have a right to vote on this issue in November.

The whopping defeat of Senator Knowland, the man who backed right-to-work to the hilt, isn't going to encourage the anti-labor drive in these states.

Total Curfew

By Bob Considine

ALGIERS — (UPI) — Funny thing happened to me on the way home last midnight from an abandoned bat cave named the Algiers Press Club. People had disappeared.

"Stay on the left side of Lelluche Street when you walk back to the hotel," Reynolds Packard had counselled. It seemed like a traffic suggestion at the time. But once on the pavement it was apparent that I could have walked criss-cross down this, Algiers' main drag, and never been touched by human hand or chrome bumper.

Not a living soul was visible as far as the eye could see, and it could see for a couple of miles in both directions.

A complete curfew is a terrible thing for an American to behold. Algiers was shuttered and its principal street as abandoned as if a terrible plague had struck the town, killed all the people, and their corpses had been removed.

You never realize how much noise you make walking until you walk down a street that possesses no other sound. Suddenly you are aware that you can also hear yourself breathing, a thought that surely never occurs to the pedestrian in any U.S. city.

The way was brightly lighted. It was garishly dead. In London during the war it was pleasant to walk along in the almost stygian blackout. You felt the whole world was out strolling with you, though you seldom saw a face. The cars would feel their way along the streets, marked only by tiny crosses of translucence on otherwise blacked-out headlights. Humans, walking along, were little more than the tiny cherry glow of their cigarets.

A curfew in a land like this is something different. It is spooky and frightening and in its shocking silence it speaks of the deeds of terror that forced it upon this city. The French — or is it the former French? — army, navy and air force are here in force. They are brave, fine lads. Their red-bereted paratroops, serving under the brilliant Gen. Massu, look as if they could hold their own with any troops on earth. It is a day force.

The people of Algiers, people from the mainland and the hooded and veiled people whose ancestors were here when the Crusaders went this way, still view the coming of nightfall with misgivings. It is worse, they say, outside the big cities.

"There," said Lionel Durand of Newsweek, "The French rule by day. The Moslems rule by night."

General de Gaulle is becoming the Estes Kefauver of North Africa. He has shaken more hands in the fast few days than perhaps in his entire previous career. Leaving the scene of his address to 200,000 Moslems and French settlers at Constantine on Thursday, he came over to the brilliant young Hearst reporter Serge Fliegers and held ont a ham-sized hand. Serge shook it warmly.

"Merci pour tout ce que vous avez fait," de Gaulle said, thanking Serge for everything he had done.

An aide looked horrified. "Monsieur le General," he whispered, identifying Serge as "only" a newspaperman, "C'est seulement un journaliste!"

Realizing his great mistake, de Gaulle turned to a berobed Moslem who looked like a stray from a Cecil B. DeMille set, seized his hand and said: "Merci pour tout ce que vous avez fait."

The guy scratched and smiled toothlessly.

Baltimore's Billy O'Dell Masters Cleveland, 5-2

Left Hander Blanks Tribe After First

Yields Two Blows In 8⅓ Innings; Triandos Hits 12th

BALTIMORE (AP)—Billy O'Dell pitched almost perfect baseball after a shaky first inning start as the Baltimore Orioles whipped the Cleveland Indians 5-2 Monday night.

The 25-year-old southpaw gave up just two singles in the final 8 1-3 innings and one of those base runners was erased on a double play as O'Dell faced only one batter over the minimum during that span.

After retiring the first two men in the first, O'Dell gave up his only walk of the game to Minnie Minoso. Rocky Colavito followed with a single to center and both runners scored on a double down the left field line by J. W. Porter.

Baltimore got three runs in its half of the first inning to quickly sew up O'Dell's sixth victory in 13 decisions. Gus Triandos knocked his 12th homer into the left field stands after singles by Al Pilarcik and Gene Woodling.

Rademacher, Folley Fight Set July 24

Pete Hopes To Meet Champ Second Time

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pete Rademacher says he's sure he'll get a rematch with Floyd Patterson for the world heavyweight championship if he whips Zora Folley in their 10-round fight here July 24.

Rademacher, 29, knocked out by Patterson his first professional fight last August in Seattle, made the statement Monday at a luncheon launching the "Fight for Lives" boxing card for the City of Hope Hospital.

The affair, in sharp contrast to the usual boxing atmosphere, was held alongside a swimming pool at the mansion of Sol Rubin, president of the Sportsmen's Club, which puts on the show.

Folley, the contender from Chandler, Ariz., also was present. He predicted a good fight and added: "Anybody who can go six rounds with Patterson and even knock him down is a good fighter."

The guests, with Rademacher and Folley, 25, watched films of the 1956 Olympic Games champion against Patterson.

"You can see I am durable and I'm still alive," the baldish Pete cracked, "and it'll be a good fight if Folley is in good shape."

This drew a laugh even from Folley. Rademacher explained that he spent too much time with the business affairs of the Patterson fight instead of properly training.

Rademacher and his supporters from Columbus, Ga., sold the incredible match to Patterson's handlers and promoter Jack Hurley.

Folley said he was in good shape but realizes this is again an important scrap for him. The two fought as amateurs. Folley whipped Pete in Seattle in 1950 and lost to him at Boston in 1951.

"I am certain I will get a rematch with Patterson if I win from Folley," Rademacher declared.

Cus D'Amato, the champion's manager, has repeatedly said Folley will not get a crack at Patterson because at one time such a match was turned down by Zora's manager, Bill Swift.

Bob Purkey Shuts Out Giants, 3-0

Notches 8th Win, Bilko Hits Homer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bob Purkey pitched his eighth victory and Steve Bilko smashed a 400-foot homer Monday to give the Cincinnati Redlegs a 3-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Purkey handcuffed the Giants on six hits while southpaw Johnny Antonelli was charged with the loss.

The Giants hung precariously to first place by three percentage points as the rest of the National League had the day off.

Only two Giants reached third base off Purkey, a 6-2 curveballer who won his fifth straight. He struck out three and did not issue a walk. He was seldom behind any hitter and saw to it that only six Giants were left on base.

Loes Rejoins Baltimore, Is Ready To Hurl

Eccentric Billy's Suspension Ends

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pitcher Billy Loes rejoined the Baltimore Orioles Monday night at the end of a six-day suspension and said he'll pitch when asked by Manager Paul Richards.

After a conference with the 28-year-old eccentric right-hander, Richards' only statement was:

"As far as I'm concerned it's a closed incident. We'll re-deal the cards and wipe the slate clean."

Loes was fined $100 and suspended three days by Richards after a run-in with umpire Larry Napp here June 1. After Napp reported he was shoved by Loes, the American League also fined the pitcher $100 and issued a separate six-day suspension.

While serving out his time, Loes said he wouldn't pitch for Richards again and repeated a previous desire to be traded. Loes apparently has changed his mind, but not because of any sudden admiration for Richards.

"I'll pitch because that's the way I make my living, not because I think Richards is the greatest man in the world," Loes said.

"I don't have anything against him. I hope he makes a million dollars. But I thought he should have come out on the field in my defense when I was fighting to win a ball game, and I still think that way."

Richards noted Loes hasn't thrown for more than a week, when asked about future plans. "We'll let him throw some first and see what develops."

Loes indicated he still would like to be traded, saying the Orioles have lots of good pitchers and "they don't need me."

Elks, Rotary Take Openers In Stove Loop

Kiwanis, B'nai B'rith Defeated

Glenn Shipway turned in a three-hit pitching performance and Billy "Rabbit" Stakem batted in four runs with a homer and two singles as the B.P.O Elks, 1957 pennant winners, launched their Hot Stove League campaign with a 7-3 decision over the Kiwanis Club last evening at Penn Avenue Field.

Shipway fanned four, walked three and the Kiwanis Club's hits were singles by Charley Boone, Jimmy Powelson and Price.

Stakem had a perfect day with three hits in three official trips. Billy's homer came in the fifth frame. Shipway connected for two safeties.

Charley Boone, the loser, struck out four, and Powelson, who came on in the fourth inning, whiffed six.

The Rotary Club took the second game of the opening day twin bill by nosing out B'nai B'rith by the score of 5-4.

A two-run error following Williams' hit and a base on balls settled the issue in the sixth inning.

Ronnie Manges pitcher until the final frame when Joe Ranker took over to preserve the win. Hopwood went all the way for B'nai B'rith. Manges fanned four and Ranker two. Hopwood struck out four.

Larry Peters homered for the Rotarians with a mate aboard in the opening frame. Ranker hit for the circuit in the fourth inning.

Red Sox Top Tigers, 9-4, For Sixth Straight Win

Virtually Tie K.C. For Second; Jensen Poles 14th Homer

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Red Sox swept to their sixth straight victory by defeating the Detroit Tigers 9-4 Monday night with a six-run third inning featured by Jackie Jensen's 14th homer.

Jensen's three-run blast, a 410-foot hoist into the Boston bullpen in right center, snapped a 2-2 deadlock and helped move the Red Sox into a virtual second place tie with Kansas City, 7½ games behind the front - running New York Yankees.

After Jensen's loft into the bullpen, a pair of walks, a double by Don Buddin and a single by Pete Runnels brought in three more runs and gave right hander Frank Sullivan a big cushion.

Decola Stops Peter Schmidt

Latter Suffers Cut Near Eye In Ninth

NEW YORK (AP)—Tony Decola opened a cut on the side of Peter Schmidt's left eye and scored a ninth round technical knockout Monday night at St. Nicholas Arena.

Decola weighed 148, Schmidt 145½ pounds. Both are New Yorkers.

Dr. Alexander Schiff of the New York State Athletic Commission refused to let Schmidt continue after he examined the cut after the ninth round.

When the bout was halted, Referee Mark Conn had Decola ahead 5-4, Judge Artie Schwartz had Schmidt ahead 5-3-1 and Judge Joe Eppy saw it even 4-4-1. The AP had Schmidt in front 5-3-1.

Decola suddenly turned "tiger" in the ninth after the gash opened in Schmidt's eyebrow. He drove his Rumanian - born opponent around the ring but was unable to drop him.

Schmidt had piled up an early lead by scoring consistently with a right to the body. The two fought at close range with much tugging and shoving.

Schmidt appeared to have taken charge in the seventh and eighth but the cut suddenly turned the tide.

Decola, 21, now has a 26-12-1 record and Schmidt, 24, is 10-10-3.

Banks Wields Blazing Bat In National

Pounds 17 Homers, Ties For RBI Lead

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs, normally a slow starter, has carried a blazing bat this spring that has enabled him to move into the National League home run lead while sharing the top spot in runs batted in and a place among the circuit's top 10 batsmen.

A year ago Monday, the slugging shortstop had only seven home runs, 21 runs batted in and a batting average of .235. But he finished with a rush, hitting 23 homers in the last two months for a season's total of 43.

Banks walloped four home runs last week and now has 17. He also drove in eight runs and is tied in the RBI competition with Frank Thomas of Pittsburgh with 49. Banks is ninth in the batting race at .324. He collected 12 hits in 25 tries last week and climbed 21 points.

Musial's Lead Slim

Neither Banks nor rookie Gene Green of St. Louis is threatening to spoil the exciting duel for the lead between Stan Musial of the Cards and Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants.

Through Sunday's games, Musial had a .418 average followed by Mays with .416.

Green moved into third place as a result of a 40-point pick up to .349. He is followed by Richie Ashburn of the Philadelphia Phillies, who dropped one notch on a 10-point slump to .346.

Because pace-setting Bob Nieman of Baltimore has been out with an injurry since June 2, the American League batting race is, more or less, in a state of suspension. None of Nieman's pursuers have been able to move in on Nieman's .367 percentage.

Harvey Kuenn of Detroit is the runner-up with .341, but the Detroit outfielder is sidelined with facial injuries received in a game in Baltimore last Wednesday.

Nellie Fox of Chicago, who held second place a week ago, lost 15 points and fell to third at .337.

Jensen Belts Ball

The big noise in the American League was made by Jackie Jensen of Boston. Jackie hit four homers and drove in 10 runs to close in on Kansas City's Bob Cerv in both departments.

Cerv had only one homer and three RBIs, putting his totals at 15 homers and 45 runs batted in. Jensen increased his figures to 13 home runs and 40 RBIs.

Baltimore's Billy O'Dell Masters Cleveland, 5-2

Left Hander Blanks Tribe After First

Yields Two Blows In 8⅓ Innings; Triandos Hits 12th

BALTIMORE (AP)—Billy O'Dell pitched almost perfect baseball after a shaky first inning start as the Baltimore Orioles whipped the Cleveland Indians 5-2 Monday night.

The 25-year-old southpaw gave up just two singles in the final 8 1-3 innings and one of those base runners was erased on a double play as O'Dell faced only one batter over the minimum during that span.

After retiring the first two men in the first, O'Dell gave up his only walk of the game to Minnie Minoso. Rocky Colavito followed with a single to center and both runners scored on a double down the left field line by J. W. Porter.

Baltimore got three runs in its half of the first inning to quickly sew up O'Dell's sixth victory in 13 decisions. Gus Triandos knocked his 12th homer into the left field stands after singles by Al Pilarcik and Gene Woodling.

Banks Wields Blazing Bat In National

Pounds 17 Homers, Ties For RBI Lead

By BEN OLAN

NEW YORK (AP)—Ernie Banks of the Chicago Cubs, normally a slow starter, has carried a blazing bat this spring that has enabled him to move into the National League home run lead while sharing the top spot in runs batted in and a place among the circuit's top 10 batsmen.

A year ago Monday, the slugging shortstop had only seven home runs, 21 runs batted in and a batting average of .235. But he finished with a rush, hitting 23 homers in the last two months for a season's total of 43.

Banks walloped four home runs last week and now has 17. He also drove in eight runs and is tied in the RBI competition with Frank Thomas of Pittsburgh with 49. Banks is ninth in the batting race at .324. He collected 12 hits in 25 tries last week and climbed 21 points.

Musial's Lead Slim

Neither Banks nor rookie Gene Green of St. Louis is threatening to spoil the exciting duel for the lead between Stan Musial of the Cards and Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants.

Through Sunday's games, Musial had a .418 average followed by Mays with .416.

Green moved into third place as a result of a 40-point pick up to .349. He is followed by Richie Ashburn of the Philadelphia Phillies, who dropped one notch on a 10-point slump to .346.

Because pace-setting Bob Nieman of Baltimore has been out with an injurry since June 2, the American League batting race is, more or less, in a state of suspension. None of Nieman's pursuers have been able to move in on Nieman's .367 percentage.

Harvey Kuenn of Detroit is the runner-up with .341, but the Detroit outfielder is sidelined with facial injuries received in a game in Baltimore last Wednesday.

Nellie Fox of Chicago, who held second place a week ago, lost 15 points and fell to third at .337.

Jensen Belts Ball

The big noise in the American League was made by Jackie Jensen of Boston. Jackie hit four homers and drove in 10 runs to close in on Kansas City's Bob Cerv in both departments.

Cerv had only one homer and three RBIs, putting his totals at 15 homers and 45 runs batted in. Jensen increased his figures to 13 home runs and 40 RBIs.

Charles Robinson Paces Fort Hill Track Scorers

Danny Webster 2nd, Sentinels Copped Five Of 7 Meets

Charles Robinson, who excelled in the high and low hurdles, the high jump and ran in the relays, paced the individual scorers of the Fort Hill High School track and field team this year by amassing a total of 107 1/15 points in the seven meets in which Coach William P. Hahn's Sentinels participated.

Robinson, a junior, and also a football and basketball star, rang up 13⅓ points in a triangular meet in Hagerstown, 9⅓ in the Handley Invitational, 18⅓ in a dual meet with Beall, 20 in the Fort Hill Invitational, 19 in the Allegany County Senior Meet, 17 in the C.V.A.L. and 10 in the Maryland Class "A" tests at College Park.

Webster Is Runner-Up

Danny Webster, another junior, whose specialty is the sprints, was second with 91½ points and Fred Joyce, the weight man, was third with 38 tallies.

Others on the squad finished in the following order: Jerry Meeks 76 5/6, William Koerner 70, Laurance Cosgrove 43, Robert Rowley 40½, Michael Holshey 40⅓, Tom Davis 34, Floyd Grim 28 5/6, Richard Keller 26, Robert Erickson 18, William Hauger 18, LeRoy Henry 14, Eugene O'Baker 10½, Dennis Burns 9, Gary Holtzman 6 and Lehew Miller 5.

Won 5 Of 7 Meets

Fort Hill had one of its most successful seasons, winning five out of seven meets, including the Allegany County Senior Meet for the 12th consecutive year. The Sentinels also won a triangular event with South and North Hagerstown in the Hub City, a dual meet with Beall, dethroned Montgomery Blair in the Fort Hill Invitational, 77⅔ to 61, and finished in front of Frederick and Handley in the C.V.A.L. meet here.

Fort Hill finished second to Handley in the invitational at Winchester, Va., and was 6th in the state meet which was won by Northwestern of Hyattsville.

Loes Rejoins Baltimore, Is Ready To Hurl

Eccentric Billy's Suspension Ends

BALTIMORE (AP) — Pitcher Billy Loes rejoined the Baltimore Orioles Monday night at the end of a six-day suspension and said he'll pitch when asked by Manager Paul Richards.

After a conference with the 28-year-old eccentric right-hander, Richards' only statement was:

"As far as I'm concerned it's a closed incident. We'll re-deal the cards and wipe the slate clean."

Loes was fined $100 and suspended three days by Richards after a run-in with umpire Larry Napp here June 1. After Napp reported he was shoved by Loes, the American League also fined the pitcher $100 and issued a separate six-day suspension.

While serving out his time, Loes said he wouldn't pitch for Richards again and repeated a previous desire to be traded. Loes apparently has changed his mind, but not because of any sudden admiration for Richards.

"I'll pitch because that's the way I make my living, not because I think Richards is the greatest man in the world," Loes said.

"I don't have anything against him. I hope he makes a million dollars. But I thought he should have come out on the field in my defense when I was fighting to win a ball game, and I still think that way."

Richards noted Loes hasn't thrown for more than a week, when asked about future plans. "We'll let him throw some first and see what develops."

Loes indicated he still would like to be traded, saying the Orioles have lots of good pitchers and "they don't need me."

Elks, Rotary Take Openers In Stove Loop

Kiwanis, B'nai B'rith Defeated

Glenn Shipway turned in a three-hit pitching performance and Billy "Rabbit" Stakem batted in four runs with a homer and two singles as the B.P.O Elks, 1957 pennant winners, launched their Hot Stove League campaign with a 7-3 decision over the Kiwanis Club last evening at Penn Avenue Field.

Shipway fanned four, walked three and the Kiwanis Club's hits were singles by Charley Boone, Jimmy Powelson and Price.

Stakem had a perfect day with three hits in three official trips. Billy's homer came in the fifth frame. Shipway connected for two safeties.

Charley Boone, the loser, struck out four, and Powelson, who came on in the fourth inning, whiffed six.

The Rotary Club took the second game of the opening day twin bill by nosing out B'nai B'rith by the score of 5-4.

A two-run error following Williams' hit and a base on balls settled the issue in the sixth inning.

Ronnie Manges pitcher until the final frame when Joe Ranker took over to preserve the win. Hopwood went all the way for B'nai B'rith. Manges fanned four and Ranker two. Hopwood struck out four.

Larry Peters homered for the Rotarians with a mate aboard in the opening frame. Ranker hit for the circuit in the fourth inning.

Red Sox Top Tigers, 9-4, For Sixth Straight Win

Virtually Tie K.C. For Second; Jensen Poles 14th Homer

BOSTON (AP)—The Boston Red Sox swept to their sixth straight victory by defeating the Detroit Tigers 9-4 Monday night with a six-run third inning featured by Jackie Jensen's 14th homer.

Jensen's three-run blast, a 410-foot hoist into the Boston bullpen in right center, snapped a 2-2 deadlock and helped move the Red Sox into a virtual second place tie with Kansas City, 7½ games behind the front - running New York Yankees.

After Jensen's loft into the bullpen, a pair of walks, a double by Don Buddin and a single by Pete Runnels brought in three more runs and gave right hander Frank Sullivan a big cushion.

Decola Stops Peter Schmidt

Latter Suffers Cut Near Eye In Ninth

NEW YORK (AP)—Tony Decola opened a cut on the side of Peter Schmidt's left eye and scored a ninth round technical knockout Monday night at St. Nicholas Arena.

Decola weighed 148, Schmidt 145½ pounds. Both are New Yorkers.

Dr. Alexander Schiff of the New York State Athletic Commission refused to let Schmidt continue after he examined the cut after the ninth round.

When the bout was halted, Referee Mark Conn had Decola ahead 5-4, Judge Artie Schwartz had Schmidt ahead 5-3-1 and Judge Joe Eppy saw it even 4-4-1. The AP had Schmidt in front 5-3-1.

Decola suddenly turned "tiger" in the ninth after the gash opened in Schmidt's eyebrow. He drove his Rumanian - born opponent around the ring but was unable to drop him.

Schmidt had piled up an early lead by scoring consistently with a right to the body. The two fought at close range with much tugging and shoving.

Schmidt appeared to have taken charge in the seventh and eighth but the cut suddenly turned the tide.

Decola, 21, now has a 26-12-1 record and Schmidt, 24, is 10-10-3.

Rademacher, Folley Fight Set July 24

Pete Hopes To Meet Champ Second Time

By BOB MYERS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Pete Rademacher says he's sure he'll get a rematch with Floyd Patterson for the world heavyweight championship if he whips Zora Folley in their 10-round fight here July 24.

Rademacher, 29, knocked out by Patterson his first professional fight last August in Seattle, made the statement Monday at a luncheon launching the "Fight for Lives" boxing card for the City of Hope Hospital.

The affair, in sharp contrast to the usual boxing atmosphere, was held alongside a swimming pool at the mansion of Sol Rubin, president of the Sportsmen's Club, which puts on the show.

Folley, the contender from Chandler, Ariz., also was present. He predicted a good fight and added: "Anybody who can go six rounds with Patterson and even knock him down is a good fighter."

The guests, with Rademacher and Folley, 25, watched films of the 1956 Olympic Games champion against Patterson.

"You can see I am durable and I'm still alive," the baldish Pete cracked, "and it'll be a good fight if Folley is in good shape."

This drew a laugh even from Folley. Rademacher explained that he spent too much time with the business affairs of the Patterson fight instead of properly training.

Rademacher and his supporters from Columbus, Ga., sold the incredible match to Patterson's handlers and promoter Jack Hurley.

Folley said he was in good shape but realizes this is again an important scrap for him. The two fought as amateurs. Folley whipped Pete in Seattle in 1950 and lost to him at Boston in 1951.

"I am certain I will get a rematch with Patterson if I win from Folley," Rademacher declared.

Cus D'Amato, the champion's manager, has repeatedly said Folley will not get a crack at Patterson because at one time such a match was turned down by Zora's manager, Bill Swift.

Bob Purkey Shuts Out Giants, 3-0

Notches 8th Win, Bilko Hits Homer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bob Purkey pitched his eighth victory and Steve Bilko smashed a 400-foot homer Monday to give the Cincinnati Redlegs a 3-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

Purkey handcuffed the Giants on six hits while southpaw Johnny Antonelli was charged with the loss.

The Giants hung precariously to first place by three percentage points as the rest of the National League had the day off.

Only two Giants reached third base off Purkey, a 6-2 curveballer who won his fifth straight. He struck out three and did not issue a walk. He was seldom behind any hitter and saw to it that only six Giants were left on base.

Cost Of Hunting Ducks May Go Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — The cost of hunting ducks will go up from $2 to $3 if the House acts favorably on a bill passed by the Senate on a voice vote Monday.

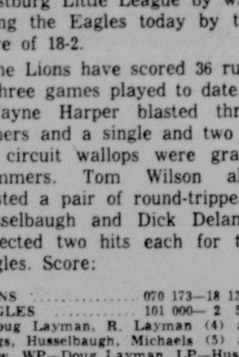

Under the terms of the measure, the price of duck stamps would go up and all of the proceeds except printing and distribution costs would go into the purchase of wet lands as wild fowl preserves.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash) told the Senate that about five million dollars now is raised annually by duck stamp sales. But he said about 80 per cent of the amount goes into administration and the policing of duck hunting.

Under the new bill the Interior Department would get direct appropriations for these activities and the stamp funds would go into land purchases.

Midland's front-running Indians won a ball game yesterday without swinging a bat when Wright's Crossing forfeited to the Twilight League leaders by being unable to field a team for the contest.

It was the second time this season that Wright's Crossing has forfeited. The league rules state that when a team forfeits three games it automatically loses its franchise, so Wright's Crossing has one more chance. Klondyke is reported to be standing by in case Wright's Crossing does a fadeout.

Barton Wins Close One

Barton stayed on the heels of the leaders by nosing out a scrappy Lonaconing team by the score of 7-6.

'Coney gave the Bartonites a scare by coming up with four runs in the final frame but the visitors finally were stopped by reliefer Billy "Gas House" Johnson, who replaced Jim Wilson. "Cokie" Robertson went the route for Lonaconing.

Johonny Johnson sparked the Barton hitters with three blows while George Lauder, Tommy Warnick and Mike Muir had two safeties each. One of Warnick's wallops was a triple. Curtis Johnson and Amoruso collected two hits each for Lonaconing.

Cumberland Loses

Westernport spotted Cumberland three runs in the early innings and then put on a garrison finish to top Cumberland at Fort Hill Field by the score of 5-3. The visitors scored four runs in the last two frames to bag the decision.

"Kip" Montgomery went the route for the winners and Paul Stickley was the loser. Bobby Raines collected two of Westernport's five hits — a triple and single. E. Leatherman obtained three of the losers' six safeties.

Finzel scored nine runs in the first three innings, then was blanked the remainder of the game, and suffered its eighth consecutive defeat at the hands of Zihlman in a game played at Finzel. The score was 11-9.

Robert Keister blasted a three-run homer and two doubles to pace the Zihlman stickers. B. Casey Doesn't Think Much Of Bean Ball Rule

Umps Are Reluctant To Fine Hurlers $50

By JOE REICHLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Casey Stengel doesn't think much of the new bean ball rule which would result in a $50 fine to a pitcher warned by an umpire for throwing at a batter.

"I not only think it won't work," said the wily manager of the New York Yankees, "but I think it's all one huge joke. In fact, the umpires are going to be more reluctant to threaten bean ballers because they won't want to be blamed for costing the pitcher 50 bucks."

Stengel, with accompanying gestures and grimaces, proceeded to illustrate his point.

"I was officially notified of the new regulation," he said, "before Saturday's game with Cleveland. The umpires, all four of them, gathered Bragan (Indians' Manager Bobby Bragan) and myself around home plate and explained the new rule. When they were all through, John Stevens, one of the umpires turned to me and said:

" 'Do you understand it?

"I said, 'No, and I don't think you do either'."

The umpires told Stengel and Bragan that if they even suspected any pitcher of intentionally throwing at a hitter, they would give the pitcher an official warning. This was to be reported to the league president, who would then notify the pitcher he had been fined $50.

"The game begins," continued Stengel," and eventually a kid named Bell comes in to pitch for the other side. He's a little wild, you see, and he don't have too much experience. But he knows enough to throw eight balls at my third baseman's head and twice he makes Mickey Mantle skip rope.

"Every time he does this, my guys holler, 'Hey, Stevens, what about that one?'

"This here Stevens, he don't even turn around. He just pays no attention to anyone and never even says a word to the kid pitcher. Not that I expected him to."

Chisox Lead, 7-1, Rain Stops Game With Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — An apparently impending Chicago White Sox victory was washed out when rain caused postponement of Monday night's game here with the White Sox leading the Washington Senators, 7-1, in the top of the fourth inning.

Erased from the records were three straight hits by Billy Goodman of the Sox and a home run by Chicago's Tito Francona. The game was called off after a delay of one hour.

Hart, Turner Fight Tonight

Former Sparmates Clash In Philly

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Buddies Garnet (Sugar) Hart and Gil Turner, longtime sparring mates, fight "for real" in a scheduled 10-round bout Tuesday night. It could be one of the year's outstanding action bouts.

The two ranking welterweights were brought up in the same section of Philadelphia. They began their fistic dueling more than five years ago when Hart was known as "skinny," and Turner was one of the hottest fighters in the welter division.

Hart, now 22, is in a position similar to that of Turner when the first started sparring. Sugar is ranked No. 4 by the National Boxing Assn. among the challengers to welterweight champion Virgil Akins.

Turner, 27, is six in the NBA listings. He is by far the more experienced with a record of 55 wins, including 35 knockouts, 17 losses and 1 draw in 73 bouts.

This experience and Turner's aggressive two - fisted pressing style will be pitted against Hart's youth, superior speed and able counter punching ability. Hart has had just 29 bouts, losing only three and drawing one. He has scored 20 knockouts.

There will be no radio or television coverage.

Aptly described by its name, the burrowing owl lives in vacated holes left by prairie dogs, foxes and badgers.

Chisox Lead, 7-1, Rain Stops Game With Washington

WASHINGTON (AP) — An apparently impending Chicago White Sox victory was washed out when rain caused postponement of Monday night's game here with the White Sox leading the Washington Senators, 7-1, in the top of the fourth inning.

Erased from the records were three straight hits by Billy Goodman of the Sox and a home run by Chicago's Tito Francona. The game was called off after a delay of one hour.

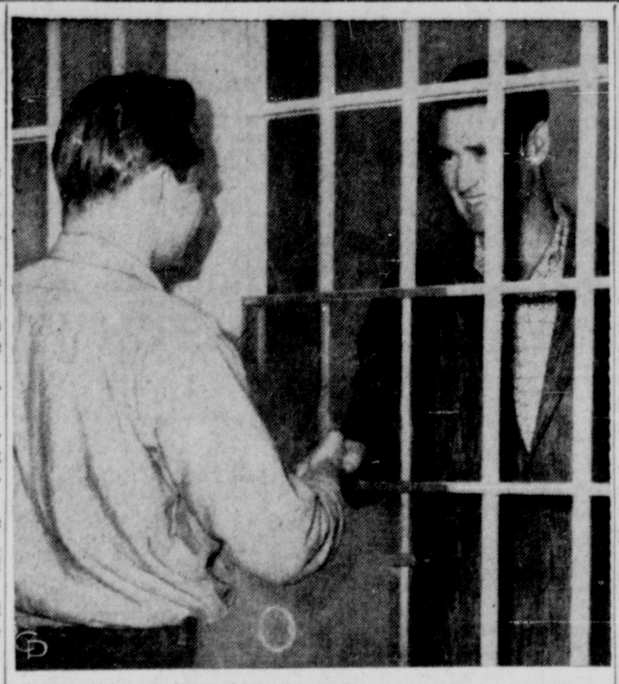

Spokane Tops Minor League Attendance

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP) — The Spokane Indians, stumbling around in sixth place in the Pacific Coast League, laid claim Monday to the top spot in home attendance among the nation's minor leagues.

Spokane is a farm club of the National League's last place Los Angeles Dodgers, who are far in front in major league attendance.

The Indians have drawn 107,089 in 25 home playing dates.

Spokane had no professional baseball at all last year.

'WE MAKE ERRORS, TOO'—Ted Williams, the Boston Red Sox slugger, bids good-by to an inmate at the Walpole, Mass., state prison, commenting, "we all make mistakes; that's why we have the errors in the box score." Hart, Turner Fight Tonight

Former Sparmates Clash In Philly

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Buddies Garnet (Sugar) Hart and Gil Turner, longtime sparring mates, fight "for real" in a scheduled 10-round bout Tuesday night. It could be one of the year's outstanding action bouts.

The two ranking welterweights were brought up in the same section of Philadelphia. They began their fistic dueling more than five years ago when Hart was known as "skinny," and Turner was one of the hottest fighters in the welter division.

Hart, now 22, is in a position similar to that of Turner when the first started sparring. Sugar is ranked No. 4 by the National Boxing Assn. among the challengers to welterweight champion Virgil Akins.

Turner, 27, is six in the NBA listings. He is by far the more experienced with a record of 55 wins, including 35 knockouts, 17 losses and 1 draw in 73 bouts.

This experience and Turner's aggressive two - fisted pressing style will be pitted against Hart's youth, superior speed and able counter punching ability. Hart has had just 29 bouts, losing only three and drawing one. He has scored 20 knockouts.

There will be no radio or television coverage.

Aptly described by its name, the burrowing owl lives in vacated holes left by prairie dogs, foxes and badgers.

Lady Be Good Wins Belmont Filly Feature

Cops $19,843 Purse In Stallion Stakes

ELMONT, N. Y., June 9—(AP)—Wheatley Stable's Lady Be Good ran straight and true in splashing home to victory in the filly division of the $30,990 National Stallion Stakes at rain-soaked Belmont Park today.

The daughter of Better Self-Past Eight, ridden by Ted Atkinson, disposed of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Sit This Out in a head-and-head duel and then had more than enough to hold Hal Price Headley's Aesthetic safe by a length in the five furlong whirl down the Widener straightaway course. Sit This Out was third a length back and a length and a half in front of Cisley Stable's Kit's Pet.

The time was a good :57 2/5. The track and American record was set at :55 4/5 by Jet Master in 1951.

It was the third start for the homebred 2-year-old and second victory. The triumph was worth $19,943.50 net to Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps, of New York, mistress of Wheatley Stable.

Given but lukewarm support in the wagering by the crowd of 21,492, Lady Be Good returned mutuels of $9.60, $5.60 and $3.40. Aesthetic, was $20.80 and $7.80 and Sit This Out was $2.70 to show.

Lady Be Good Wins Belmont Filly Feature

Cops $19,843 Purse In Stallion Stakes

ELMONT, N. Y., June 9—(AP)—Wheatley Stable's Lady Be Good ran straight and true in splashing home to victory in the filly division of the $30,990 National Stallion Stakes at rain-soaked Belmont Park today.

The daughter of Better Self-Past Eight, ridden by Ted Atkinson, disposed of Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's Sit This Out in a head-and-head duel and then had more than enough to hold Hal Price Headley's Aesthetic safe by a length in the five furlong whirl down the Widener straightaway course. Sit This Out was third a length back and a length and a half in front of Cisley Stable's Kit's Pet.

The time was a good :57 2/5. The track and American record was set at :55 4/5 by Jet Master in 1951.

It was the third start for the homebred 2-year-old and second victory. The triumph was worth $19,943.50 net to Mrs. Henry Carnegie Phipps, of New York, mistress of Wheatley Stable.

Given but lukewarm support in the wagering by the crowd of 21,492, Lady Be Good returned mutuels of $9.60, $5.60 and $3.40. Aesthetic, was $20.80 and $7.80 and Sit This Out was $2.70 to show.

Senators Pay Bonus To Marquette Star

MENASHA, Wis. (AP) — Ron Dibelius, 19-year-old Marquette University sophomore who was one of Wisconsin's greatest schoolboy athletes, signed a contract with the Washington Senators Monday for a bonus "in excess of $20,000."

The switch-hitting Dibelius, primarily a righthanded pitcher but experienced at all positions except catcher, was signed as a third baseman by scout Tom Fischer. He was assigned to the Fox City Foxes of the Class B Three-I League.

IN MEMORIAM

IN LOVING MEMORY of our Mother, Edith Hott, whom God called home one year ago today, June 10th, 1957.
We missed you so dear Mother,
Since God called you away;
And this day more than ever,
For this is our sad day.
With broken hearts we watched you,
We saw you pass away;
And though we loved you dearly,
We could not make you stay.
We were standing by your bedside,
We saw your life depart;
When we knew that you were gone,
It almost broke our hearts.
Time heals broken hearts they say,
We know it isn't true
For one long year has passed,
Our hearts still ache for you.
Sadly missed by
SONS AND DAUGHTERS

IN MEMORIAM

IN LOVING MEMORY of our Mother, Edith Hott, whom God called home one year ago today, June 10th, 1957.
We missed you so dear Mother,
Since God called you away;
And this day more than ever,
For this is our sad day.
With broken hearts we watched you,
We saw you pass away;
And though we loved you dearly,
We could not make you stay.
We were standing by your bedside,
We saw your life depart;
When we knew that you were gone,
It almost broke our hearts.
Time heals broken hearts they say,
We know it isn't true
For one long year has passed,
Our hearts still ache for you.
Sadly missed by
SONS AND DAUGHTERS

The secret of the success of the most becoming new hairdos—their freshly-washed look, natural appearing curl.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Shining Clean Locks A Must For New Hair Styles

Men may be critical of some of the summer clothes fashions — but not of fashions in hair styles. This is a season when a girl who knows what becomes her can wear her hair in the latest style and look pretty. Soft arrangement of new short hairdos makes it easy to emphasize her best features. She can look neat and as if her hair were naturally curly, not set to a rigid pattern nor too curled. And most appealing of all is the healthy-clean look of her hair — as lively and shining as a child's.

The hair is cut in layers and is usually set on big rollers. It can be taken care of at home easily enough if the original haircut is the expert job it must be. No matter how skillful you may have been before, firmly resist the tempation to whack away at your own hair. It may take months for the botched job to be repaired. Blunt ends can't be disguised, and uneven slashes complicate setting. There's real art to cutting hair in layers so it sets and combs smoothly, and nothing less than the best possible professional cut is good enough.

If your hair is straight, you'll need a soft, loose permanent to give your hair the necessary body to hold the set. But whether straight or curly, never allow it to show signs of becoming limp or dingy, even for a day. Shampoo at least once a week, and don't be satisfied until your hair squeaks clean — lather richly with a good shampoo, rinse and lather again before the final rinsing. But for the new soft curls, the hair can be towel-dried and set while slightly damp rather than set while wet.

When a special event is in prospect, wash your hair two days beforehand. That fluffy, new-washed look will stay, but your coiffure will be easier to manage. And to keep those highlights gleaming between shampoos, don't spare the hairbrush. Make those 100 strokes a ritual every day.

Tomorrow: Skin Cleansing.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 spade	Double	2 spades
Pass	3 hearts	Pass	3 spades
Pass	4 spades	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of diamonds.

In the discussion of penalty doubles fewer precepts are available for practical use than in any other. There is no royal road to doubling; there is no escape from the exercise of good judgment, as West learned to his regret today.

The bidding is given as it actually occurred, though the less said about North's choice of calls perhaps the better. The original raise to two spades over West's double was eminently sound, but when South moved forward with a bid of three hearts, North should have jumped to four spades to show that he held a maximum raise inasmuch as his partner might be unable to go further on his own.

North timidly returned to three spades, but fortunately, South, who was merely probing for the best contract, had sufficient to proceed to game. At this point West repeated his double.

West led the king of diamonds and, when East dropped the ten, continued with the ace and another in an effort to promote his trump holding.

East's four of spades could force nothing higher than the seven and it was obvious to South that West's double was based on the guarded marriage in trumps in addition to his other high cards. In order to fulfill the contract an end play would be required, but first the side suits must be stripped.

A heart was led to the ace and a diamond ruffed in the closed hand. South now cashed the king of hearts, ace and king of clubs, discarding a heart, and ruffed a heart in dummy. The last diamond was ruffed leaving this position.

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market Monday was irregular but it showed elements of selective strength.

After last week's progression to a series of new highs for the year some degree of profit taking and consolidation was in order.

Most noteworthy group development was a decline in steels because of news of a price cut in the Detroit area. The steel shares declined despite a rise in output for the sixth straight week as demand remained good.

Most airline and some aircraft stocks participated in a mild spurt. Copper improved as the world price for the metal moved higher again. Most oils and major automotive shares were lower.

Gains and losses of fractions to around a point were the general pattern for key stocks.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks edged off a minimum 10 cents to $172.50, leaving it a shade below the latest 1958 high. The industrial component rose 20 cents, establishing a new 1958 peak of its own. The rails fell 60 cents and the utilities declined 10 cents.

Of 1,174 issues traded, 489 declined and 438 advanced. New highs for the year were 105 and new lows 4.

Volume was 2,380,000 shares compared with 2,680,000 Friday. The turnover was a shade above average for this year.

Jenners Man Charged With Manslaughter

Chupek Posts $500 Bond In Auto Death

Andrew Bernard Chupek, 35-year-old Jenners, Pa., carpenter, was charged with manslaughter by automobile yesterday and posted $500 bond for his trial later in Trial Magistrates Court.

The Pennsylvanian was released from Memorial Hospital yesterday, where he had been a patient since the fatal auto crash which killed Frank Junior Mayhew, 34, of Piedmont, on Saturday, May 17.

The accident, which also injured Mrs. Junie Ellen Bennett, 21, of Piedmont, occurred early in the morning on State Route 135, about a half-mile east of Westernport where Mr. Chupek had been residing while working in the Tri-Towns area. He was identified as the driver of the car.

Assistant State's Attorney Donald W. Mason said a statement was obtained from Mr. Chupek at the hospital yesterday before he was released. County Investigator Edwin R. Lilya and Mrs. Carol Fritz, secretary to the state's attorney, visited the hospital to obtain the statement as Mr. Chupek still is recovering from back, head and internal injuries received in the accident.

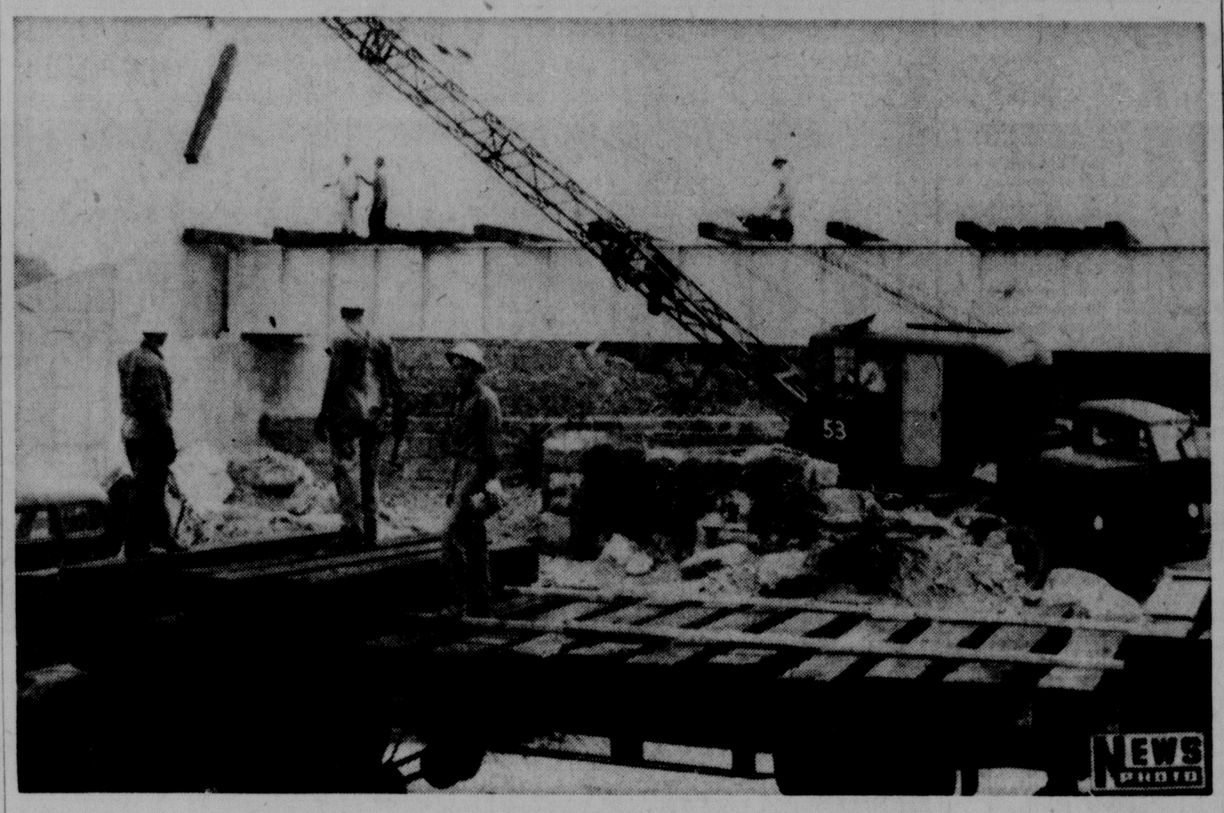

Members of the man's family attended the preliminary hearing yesterday before Magistrate J. Milton Dick who set the bond for the defendant's appearance at a later date for trial.

The state's attorney's office said a date for the hearing will be set when Mr. Chupek is sufficiently recovered from his injuries to appear in court.

The manslaughter case will be the first to be heard locally in the lower court in many years. Previous policy by former state's attorneys of Allegany County had been to present this type of case, a misdemeanor, to the grand jury for indictment.

However, State's Attorney James S. Getty said that he intends to dispose of all such cases as quickly as possible in the lower courts unless a jury trial is asked.

State Trooper L. Wayne Lewis investigated the accident which occurred when the automobile in which Mr. Chupek, Mrs. Bennett and Mr. Mayhew, were riding hit a dirt shoulder along the road and crashed over a steep embankment.

Interchange Bridge Is Up

Flood control crews are laying timber on the deck of the new Western Maryland-B & O interchange bridge located south of the Western Maryland Railway station here. The steel girder span is set on massive concrete abutments and lies directly above the intake channel of the old C & O Canal. Fill for the approaches to the span are virtually completed. The modern bridge, which will be used to switch rolling stock from one railroad to the other, will replace an obsolete bridge across the Potomac River here. It is one of two railroad bridges being replaced by the Corps of Engineers.

Idle Pay Action Is Set Friday

Some Opposition Reported To Plan

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gov. McKeldin Monday called the Maryland Legislature into special session Friday to extend unemployment benefits.

Although most legislative leaders have approved the idea in principle, some opposition was reported.

Sen. John Grason Turnbull (D-Balto), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he had an open mind on the question but was "absolutely opposed to the idea of the Legislature's being a rubber stamp."

Turnbull said he understood there was outright opposition in some quarters to the proposal to borrow federal funds for extending the maximum period of unemployment benefits from 26 to 39 weeks.

Convenes At 10 A. M.

This is basically the proposal to be laid before the legislators when they convene in Annapolis at 10 a. m. It would take the form of a bill authorizing state officials to borrow federal funds for this purpose. Such funds are available under an act signed last Wednesday by President Eisenhower and covering jobless workers between next June 30 and April 1.

McKeldin issued the special session call after a conference with legislative leaders earlier in the day.

The Legislative Council, composed of 20 legislative chieftains, voted unanimously in favor of the proposal last week. Spokesmen for labor unions, business and industrial groups told members they approved the nine-month plan.

Finance Unit To Meet

The council was told more than 18,000 unemployed workers had exhausted their 26-week jobless pay benefits in Maryland since last fall.

Turnbull said he and Del. A. Gordon Boone (D-Balto County), chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, had called their money units into a meeting 3 p. m. on the eve of the session.

He said witnesses who had appeared before the Legislative Council would be invited to testify.

The chairman also emphasized the meeting would be open to, and the committees would be glad to hear from, any witnesses who did not appear before the Legislative Council.

"We'll sit until midnight to hear all of them, if necessary," he said.

"I am not committed one way or the other on this thing," said Turnbull, who did not seek re-election to the Senate. "But I am absolutely opposed to the idea of the Legislature's being a rubber stamp.

To Seek Facts

"Just because Congress and the President believe there is a need for it is no reason for our not looking into the facts and determining for ourselves whether an extension is necessary under these circumstances.

"I am absolutely opposed to going down to Annapolis and having the Legislature act in a vacuum."

Besides the jobless pay extension, the session may also consider two Baltimore City bond bills. One would pave the way for a referendum on a 25-million-dollar loan to rehabilitate the downtown business area. The other would seek to double the six million dollars now available for construction of a civic center and sports arena.

City senators and delegates were expected to hold separate advance meetings on these issues. Chairman Marvin Mandel (D-Balto 5th) said he was trying to arrange a meeting of the delegates for Wednesday afternoon in Baltimore City Hall.

DR. ROBERT H. PARKER

Former Local Resident Gets Methodist Post

Dr. Robert Parker Is Superintendent

Dr. Robert H. Parker, pastor of Northwood-Appold Methodist Church, Baltimore, and a former resident of Cumberland, has been named superintendent of the Baltimore South District.

The appointment was made Sunday by Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam at the annual Baltimore Conference in Westminster.

Dr. Parker succeeds Dr. E. Cranston Riggin, now executive secretary of the Baltimore Conference Board of Missions. The Baltimore South District consists of 60 Methodist charges in South Baltimore and its suburbs, in Annapolis, and in small towns of south central Maryland.

Dr. Parker recently celebrated his 20th year as a Methodist minister. During his 14 years as minister of Northwood-Appold Church, the congregation has grown to be the largest Methodist congregation in Baltimore. In the early days of mass exodus to this suburb, four small churchs united to form Northwood-Appold Church. With a nucleus of about 100 members from these churches, Dr. Parker began a personal campaign of evangelism by meeting moving vans as families came into this group housing area. Today, Northwood-Appold continues to have an unusually effective program for its 2431 members and their suburban community. The church is currently building a $340,000 educational center for an around-the-week church activity program for youth and children.

Dr. Parker's first two ministerial appointments were at Union Grove Circuit, Allegany County, from 1937-1941 and at Parkton, Baltimore County, from 1941-44.

Dr. Parker received a B. D. degree from Drew Theological Seminary in 1937, an A. B. degree from American University in 1934, and a D. D. degree from Western Maryland College in 1953. He is on the Drew Seminary Board of Trustees.

Dr. Parker is married to the former Miss Meredith G. Snowden, also of Cumberland. They have two daughters, Sylvia and Sharon.

86 Cresaptown Ninth Graders Get Diplomas

Seven Recognized For High Rank

Some 86 ninth graders of Cresaptown Junior High School last night received diplomas from Mrs. L. Brooks Starcher, a member of the Allegany County Board of Education, at the 27th annual commencement exercises in the school auditorium.

Miss Myra M. Nefflen, school principal, singled out seven of the 86 graduates, most of whom will move on to Allegany High School next September, for their scholastic excellence.

The three highest rankig girls were Barbara Psimer, first; Donna Simpson, second, and Janet Fleming, third. The scholastic leaders among the boys were Larry VanMeter and William Kifer, tied for first; Dennis Bobo, second, and James McKenzie, third.

Rev. Cornelius B. Davis, pastor of Second Baptist Church, this city, delivered the principal address to the graduates, their relatives and friends.

The Cresaptown Junior High School Band, directed by Miss Ann E. Thompson, music teacher, played several selections before the traditional "Pomp and Circumstance," as the processional.

The ninth grade gave a choral reading and a select group sang "You Will Never Walk Alone." After the commencement address the ninth graders sang the school song, "It's Cresaptown," and the class song "He." The graduates also sang "The Lord Bless You And Keep You" to the piano accompaniment of Barbara Psimer.

Rev. Harold A. Allem, pastor of Calvary Baptist Church, Cresaptown, gave both the invocation and benediction.

This ninth grade class was predominantly comprised of boys. There were 53 boys and only 33 girls among the graduates.

Several days ago he met with James McHenry, Garrett County farm agent; Rankin Lusby, his assistant, and Richard Shukraft, assistant agent of Washington County, to work out final plans and details including job assignments for counselors.

This year, according to Mr. Arnold, a "full camp" is expected with a total of 120 participants. The age group of boys is from 10 to 21 years.

Interested 4-H boys are reminded reservations must be in Mr. Arnold's hands by July 1. His office is located in the Court House. The campers will sleep in regular cabins and will have a central mess.

Demo Leaders Ready Blasts At National GOP

Platform Goes To Convention Today

By LOUIS G. PANOS

BALTIMORE (AP)— Maryland Democratic chiefs, shaping a platform for presentation to the State convention Tuesday, came up Monday night with a 10-page effort concentrating most of its fire on the National Republican Administration.

Compared with the 29-page platform adopted Saturday by the Republicans, the Democratic election-year creed to be offered Tuesday is milder on civil rights.

But in one of its few criticisms of the Republican State administration, the document says that Democrats in Congress and in the Baltimore City administration have accomplished much in the field of civil rights. The Republicans, especially in Maryland, have "failed miserably," it adds.

Cites Budget Boosts

With the opposition party in the State House, the proposed platform also says, Maryland's budget has increased more than 2½ times since the last Democratic administration eight years ago.

While the Republican platform calls for big-scale leasing of barren oyster bottom to private interests, the Democratic draft deals with this controversial subject in more general terms. It calls for creation of an agency to study and develop a program for reviving and managing the State's sagging oyster industry.

Among other notable features is a plank calling for steps to give Baltimore City and the more heavily populated counties — especially Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Montgomery and Prince Georges —more equitable representation in the General Assembly. The city and five counties have 80 per cent of the State's population but only 20 per cent of the votes in the General Assembly, it notes.

Urges Tax Court

Another urges creation of a special tax court to hear appeals from property assessments. Such appeals are now heard by the State Tax Commission, whose employes do the assessing.

Deploring "the failure of the Republican Administration to remedy the overcrowded conditions" in state prisons, the Democratic leaders would pledge their administration to construction of new facilities for handling the overload of prisoners.

In charging that the Republican National Administration has "failed to meet and solve the issues which now face the American people," the platform draft accuses it of mismanaging domestic affairs so badly that it has pushed "the nation to the brink of a widespread and destructive depression." It cites unemployment figures and a cost of living which has reached "the highest point in history and continues to rise."

Dr. Gorman To Head RC Water Unit

Dr. John T. Gorman, a local dentist, was elected chairman of the Red Cross water safety committee last night at a meeting in the local Red Cross offices. Named as co-chairman is Eugene Mason, city recreation director.

Mrs. John McGuire is the committee's secretary.

According to C. M. Sanner, Red Cross chairman, the meeting was attended by representatives of the public school system, county 4-H and Future Farmers organizations, the YMCA, the Red Cross, city recreation department and a number of life saving and swimming instructors.

The committee considered plans for a program of classes this summer at Constitution Park pool and will pursue the possibility of establishing classes in other communities of the county.

A class of adults will start at Constitution Park June 23 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Interested adults who want to learn to swim may call the Red Cross office for details.

Classes in swimming, junior life saving, senior life saving and survival swimming will also be organized during the coming weeks, Mrs. Legge said.

There are a number of qualified instructors available, she noted, but more can be utilized by the Red Cross if they are available and have necessary RC certification.

'Open House' Planned By PPG Plant

Cumberland area residents will be offered the opportunity to see Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company's new plate glass manufacturing operations here on Wednesday and Thursday, June 25 and 26.

According to Robert M. Hainsfurther, plant manager, plans are underway for a two-day open house program on those dates. A brief and limited dedication ceremony is scheduled for Tuesday, June 24, at which time Pittsburgh Plate Glass employees and their families will visit the plant.

"Since the plant was placed in limited production, organizations representing thousands of local residents and literally hundreds of individuals have requested the opportunity to see the plate glass manufacturing operations," Hainsfurther said.

Plans are being made by the plant management to make possible the two-day open house program. The tour will be from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. and will be open to all adults and to children between 12 and 18 who are accompanied by an adult.

Plans for the two-day program are being formulated under the direction of Hainsfurther and committee chairman William P. Lawrence.

The following committee appointments have been made: John B. White, plant tour route; John J. Long, safety, parking and transportation; Norman C. Curtis, placard and sign preparations; Murray A. King, displays and exhibits; Robert R. Esler, reception; Ray G. Joiner, refreshments; and William A. Cook, publicity and advertising.

As plans are fully formulated additional details will be announced, Hainsfurther said.

The plant, one of the world's most modern plate glass factories, has been in operation since late 1957. It produces twin-ground polished plate glass used primarily for mirrors, store fronts and in building construction.

The local project was scheduled for completion this December, except for minor clean-up work. Late spring floods, however, have delayed the work.

Recent estimates of cost were not available, but the project is expected to cost about $18 million in federal, city and county funds.

Jenners Man Charged With Manslaughter

Chupek Posts $500 Bond In Auto Death

Andrew Bernard Chupek, 35-year-old Jenners, Pa., carpenter, was charged with manslaughter by automobile yesterday and posted $500 bond for his trial later in Trial Magistrates Court.

The Pennsylvanian was released from Memorial Hospital yesterday, where he had been a patient since the fatal auto crash which killed Frank Junior Mayhew, 34, of Piedmont, on Saturday, May 17.

The accident, which also injured Mrs. Junie Ellen Bennett, 21, of Piedmont, occurred early in the morning on State Route 135, about a half-mile east of Westernport where Mr. Chupek had been residing while working in the Tri-Towns area. He was identified as the driver of the car.

Assistant State's Attorney Donald W. Mason said a statement was obtained from Mr. Chupek at the hospital yesterday before he was released. County Investigator Edwin R. Lilya and Mrs. Carol Fritz, secretary to the state's attorney, visited the hospital to obtain the statement as Mr. Chupek still is recovering from back, head and internal injuries received in the accident.

Members of the man's family attended the preliminary hearing yesterday before Magistrate J. Milton Dick who set the bond for the defendant's appearance at a later date for trial.

The state's attorney's office said a date for the hearing will be set when Mr. Chupek is sufficiently recovered from his injuries to appear in court.

The manslaughter case will be the first to be heard locally in the lower court in many years. Previous policy by former state's attorneys of Allegany County had been to present this type of case, a misdemeanor, to the grand jury for indictment.

However, State's Attorney James S. Getty said that he intends to dispose of all such cases as quickly as possible in the lower courts unless a jury trial is asked.

State Trooper L. Wayne Lewis investigated the accident which occurred when the automobile in which Mr. Chupek, Mrs. Bennett and Mr. Mayhew, were riding hit a dirt shoulder along the road and crashed over a steep embankment.

'Open House' Planned By PPG Plant

Cumberland area residents will be offered the opportunity to see Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company's new plate glass manufacturing operations here on Wednesday and Thursday, June 25 and 26.

According to Robert M. Hainsfurther, plant manager, plans are underway for a two-day open house program on those dates. A brief and limited dedication ceremony is scheduled for Tuesday, June 24, at which time Pittsburgh Plate Glass employees and their families will visit the plant.

"Since the plant was placed in limited production, organizations representing thousands of local residents and literally hundreds of individuals have requested the opportunity to see the plate glass manufacturing operations," Hainsfurther said.

Plans are being made by the plant management to make possible the two-day open house program. The tour will be from 9 a. m. to 9 p. m. and will be open to all adults and to children between 12 and 18 who are accompanied by an adult.

Plans for the two-day program are being formulated under the direction of Hainsfurther and committee chairman William P. Lawrence.

The following committee appointments have been made: John B. White, plant tour route; John J. Long, safety, parking and transportation; Norman C. Curtis, placard and sign preparations; Murray A. King, displays and exhibits; Robert R. Esler, reception; Ray G. Joiner, refreshments; and William A. Cook, publicity and advertising.

As plans are fully formulated additional details will be announced, Hainsfurther said.

The plant, one of the world's most modern plate glass factories, has been in operation since late 1957. It produces twin-ground polished plate glass used primarily for mirrors, store fronts and in building construction.

Demo Leaders Ready Blasts At National GOP

Platform Goes To Convention Today

By LOUIS G. PANOS

BALTIMORE (AP)— Maryland Democratic chiefs, shaping a platform for presentation to the State convention Tuesday, came up Monday night with a 10-page effort concentrating most of its fire on the National Republican Administration.

Compared with the 29-page platform adopted Saturday by the Republicans, the Democratic election-year creed to be offered Tuesday is milder on civil rights.

But in one of its few criticisms of the Republican State administration, the document says that Democrats in Congress and in the Baltimore City administration have accomplished much in the field of civil rights. The Republicans, especially in Maryland, have "failed miserably," it adds.

Cites Budget Boosts

With the opposition party in the State House, the proposed platform also says, Maryland's budget has increased more than 2½ times since the last Democratic administration eight years ago.

While the Republican platform calls for big-scale leasing of barren oyster bottom to private interests, the Democratic draft deals with this controversial subject in more general terms. It calls for creation of an agency to study and develop a program for reviving and managing the State's sagging oyster industry.

Among other notable features is a plank calling for steps to give Baltimore City and the more heavily populated counties — especially Anne Arundel, Baltimore, Montgomery and Prince Georges —more equitable representation in the General Assembly. The city and five counties have 80 per cent of the State's population but only 20 per cent of the votes in the General Assembly, it notes.

Urges Tax Court

Another urges creation of a special tax court to hear appeals from property assessments. Such appeals are now heard by the State Tax Commission, whose employes do the assessing.

Deploring "the failure of the Republican Administration to remedy the overcrowded conditions" in state prisons, the Democratic leaders would pledge their administration to construction of new facilities for handling the overload of prisoners.

In charging that the Republican National Administration has "failed to meet and solve the issues which now face the American people," the platform draft accuses it of mismanaging domestic affairs so badly that it has pushed "the nation to the brink of a widespread and destructive depression." It cites unemployment figures and a cost of living which has reached "the highest point in history and continues to rise."

Idle Pay Action Is Set Friday

Some Opposition Reported To Plan

BALTIMORE (AP) — Gov. McKeldin Monday called the Maryland Legislature into special session Friday to extend unemployment benefits.

Although most legislative leaders have approved the idea in principle, some opposition was reported.

Sen. John Grason Turnbull (D-Balto), chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said he had an open mind on the question but was "absolutely opposed to the idea of the Legislature's being a rubber stamp."

Turnbull said he understood there was outright opposition in some quarters to the proposal to borrow federal funds for extending the maximum period of unemployment benefits from 26 to 39 weeks.

Convenes At 10 A. M.

This is basically the proposal to be laid before the legislators when they convene in Annapolis at 10 a. m. It would take the form of a bill authorizing state officials to borrow federal funds for this purpose. Such funds are available under an act signed last Wednesday by President Eisenhower and covering jobless workers between next June 30 and April 1.

McKeldin issued the special session call after a conference with legislative leaders earlier in the day.

The Legislative Council, composed of 20 legislative chieftains, voted unanimously in favor of the proposal last week. Spokesmen for labor unions, business and industrial groups told members they approved the nine-month plan.

Finance Unit To Meet

The council was told more than 18,000 unemployed workers had exhausted their 26-week jobless pay benefits in Maryland since last fall.

Turnbull said he and Del. A. Gordon Boone (D-Balto County), chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, had called their money units into a meeting 3 p. m. on the eve of the session.

He said witnesses who had appeared before the Legislative Council would be invited to testify.

The chairman also emphasized the meeting would be open to, and the committees would be glad to hear from, any witnesses who did not appear before the Legislative Council.

"We'll sit until midnight to hear all of them, if necessary," he said.

"I am not committed one way or the other on this thing," said Turnbull, who did not seek re-election to the Senate. "But I am absolutely opposed to the idea of the Legislature's being a rubber stamp.

To Seek Facts

"Just because Congress and the President believe there is a need for it is no reason for our not looking into the facts and determining for ourselves whether an extension is necessary under these circumstances.

"I am absolutely opposed to going down to Annapolis and having the Legislature act in a vacuum."

Besides the jobless pay extension, the session may also consider two Baltimore City bond bills. One would pave the way for a referendum on a 25-million-dollar loan to rehabilitate the downtown business area. The other would seek to double the six million dollars now available for construction of a civic center and sports arena.

City senators and delegates were expected to hold separate advance meetings on these issues. Chairman Marvin Mandel (D-Balto 5th) said he was trying to arrange a meeting of the delegates for Wednesday afternoon in Baltimore City Hall.

DR. ROBERT H. PARKER

Former Local Resident Gets Methodist Post

Dr. Robert Parker Is Superintendent

Dr. Robert H. Parker, pastor of Northwood-Appold Methodist Church, Baltimore, and a former resident of Cumberland, has been named superintendent of the Baltimore South District.

The appointment was made Sunday by Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam at the annual Baltimore Conference in Westminster.

Dr. Parker succeeds Dr. E. Cranston Riggin, now executive secretary of the Baltimore Conference Board of Missions. The Baltimore South District consists of 60 Methodist charges in South Baltimore and its suburbs, in Annapolis, and in small towns of south central Maryland.

Dr. Parker recently celebrated his 20th year as a Methodist minister. During his 14 years as minister of Northwood-Appold Church, the congregation has grown to be the largest Methodist congregation in Baltimore. In the early days of mass exodus to this suburb, four small churchs united to form Northwood-Appold Church. With a nucleus of about 100 members from these churches, Dr. Parker began a personal campaign of evangelism by meeting moving vans as families came into this group housing area. Today, Northwood-Appold continues to have an unusually effective program for its 2431 members and their suburban community. The church is currently building a $340,000 educational center for an around-the-week church activity program for youth and children.

Dr. Parker's first two ministerial appointments were at Union Grove Circuit, Allegany County, from 1937-1941 and at Parkton, Baltimore County, from 1941-44.

Dr. Parker received a B. D. degree from Drew Theological Seminary in 1937, an A. B. degree from American University in 1934, and a D. D. degree from Western Maryland College in 1953. He is on the Drew Seminary Board of Trustees.

Dr. Parker is married to the former Miss Meredith G. Snowden, also of Cumberland. They have two daughters, Sylvia and Sharon.

Dr. Gorman To Head RC Water Unit

Dr. John T. Gorman, a local dentist, was elected chairman of the Red Cross water safety committee last night at a meeting in the local Red Cross offices. Named as co-chairman is Eugene Mason, city recreation director.

Mrs. John McGuire is the committee's secretary.

According to C. M. Sanner, Red Cross chairman, the meeting was attended by representatives of the public school system, county 4-H and Future Farmers organizations, the YMCA, the Red Cross, city recreation department and a number of life saving and swimming instructors.

The committee considered plans for a program of classes this summer at Constitution Park pool and will pursue the possibility of establishing classes in other communities of the county.

A class of adults will start at Constitution Park June 23 from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. Interested adults who want to learn to swim may call the Red Cross office for details.

Classes in swimming, junior life saving, senior life saving and survival swimming will also be organized during the coming weeks, Mrs. Legge said.

There are a number of qualified instructors available, she noted, but more can be utilized by the Red Cross if they are available and have necessary RC certification.
